MALACCA

The Settlement of Malacca excites more interest from a historical point of view than either of its sister towns. Commercially, it fell completely to the rear after the establishment of Penang and Singapore, but the advent of the rubber industry in 1906 converted the Settlement into a flourishing agricultural province. Originally settled by the Portuguese in 1511, it was for many years the one foreign entrepôt in the East, and the fact that it has given its name to the Peninsula and that it was the cradle of Anglo-Chinese study attest its former importance. Its area is embraced by boundaries some 42 miles in length, with a breadth of from eight to 25 miles. It is governed by a Resident Councillor in subordination to Singapore.

The geological formation of the territory of Malacca consists chiefly of granite rock, overlaid in several places by the red cellular clay iron-stone called by geologists laterits. Many of the low plains are alluvial, the soil composed of decayed vegetable mould interlaced with sand. The metallic ores are iron and a little tin. The surface generally is undulating, consisting of low round ridges and narrow valleys, the only mountain of considerable elevation being the Ophir of the Portuguese, which is just over the border in Johore territory, 4,187 feet above the level of the sea. It is called by the Malays "Gunong Ledang."

The mineral products of Malacca were at one time looked upon as offering valuable prospects. Gold to the extent of 1,500 ounces yearly was obtained in 1857-8, just outside the confines of the present territory, but the yield decreased to such an extent that it is no longer worked. Tin, about the same period, assumed considerable importance. The first mines were opened in 1793, but no great enterprise was displayed until 1848. when some 5,000 cwt. was the annual product. This increased until 1858, and a large number of Chinese were employed in the industry. The superior yield of the Native States, however, combined with the exhaustion of the surface workings, resulted in mining enterprise in Malacca being virtually abandoned. A little tin mining still goes on in the Jasin district, and gold may possibly exist in very small quantities.

The climate of Malacca as to temperature is such as might be expected in a country not much more than 100 miles from the equator, lying along the sea shore—hot and moist. The thermometer in the shade ranges from 72° to 88° Fahrenheit, seldom being so low as the first of these, and not often higher than the latter. The range of the barometer is only from 29.8 to 30.3 inches. Notwithstanding constant heat, much moisture, and many swamps, the town at least is remarkable for its salubrity, and, with the exception of the early period of its occupation by the Portuguese, has always enjoyed this reputation.

Malacca offers numerous attractions to the ornithologist and entomologist, but it is less rich in mammals than many other tropical districts. Nine species of quadrumana, the tiger, black leopard, wild cat, several species of viverrida (such as the musang and binturong), the elephant, one-horned rhinoceros, tapir, six species of deer, and two of the wild ox comprise a nearly complete list and, no doubt, at one time could be found, but no rhinoceros or elephant has been seen for many years, and wild oxen have not been heard of for over 30 years. Fair sport can be obtained by those fond of shooting, from tiger to snipe. It is noteworthy that the existence of the tapir was unknown until 1816, although European intercourse dates back to some three centuries before. Tigers in the early days of Portuguese occupation were so plentiful that the want of inhabitants was seriously attributed to this cause. As with the birds and insects, so with the reptiles. The snakes, lizards, and crocodiles are, as a rule, those of the peninsula generally, the birds alone presenting a rather larger variety than those of other districts. Nor does the vegetation present any exclusive features, being that of the surrounding States. The coast line is poor in shells, and the absence of limestone accounts for the few species of land shells found within the district.

Beyond its interest to the sportsman or naturalist, Malacca possesses no attractions except to those who like to visit scenes famous in the annals of discovery for the bloody fights they have witnessed between the natives and the European nations who contended for their possession. Its population in 191 was estimated at 186,711. There are some 460 European residents in the Settlement, of whom at least three-quarters are planters.

The trade is largely with Singapore and the Federated Malay States, but rubber is shipped fortnightly by Japanese mail steamers to Europe. The cultivation of tapioca was formerly the principal industry, but rubber is now extensively planted, several large companies having taken over a number of small estates. The cultivation of tapioca and gambier is declining rapidly in favour of coconuts and rubber, there being 200,000 acres under rubber and 48,133 acres growing coconuts, pineapple and other fruits. The total value of foreign imports and exports of Malacca for the year 1937 were $6,364,850 & $2,158,012 respectively.

FEDERATED MALAY STATES

The Federated Malay States comprise the four states of Perak, Selangor, Negri Sembilan and Pahang. In 1895 a treaty was signed by the Rulers of the four States by which they agreed to constitute their countries into a Federation to be administered under the advice of the British Government. Each State is administered under the advice of a Resident, subject to the instructions of the High Commissioner who is also Governor of the Straits Settlements. The Federal Government is under the immediate control of the Federal Secretary subject to the instructions of the High Commissioner. In 1909 a Federal Council was created for the joint arrangement of all matters of common interest to the Federation or affecting more than one State and for the proper enactment of all laws intended to have force throughout the Federation or in more than one State. The Federal offices are at Kuala Lumpur, Selangor.

The States have over 1,068 miles of railway in the Malay Peninsula. They have 4,826 miles of roads, of which 3,067 are metalled and gravelled. Of the metalled roads 2,283 miles or 80% are bituminously treated. The wire mileage of telegraphs and telephones is 60,551 (of which 27,311 miles of wire is in underground cables). Waterworks wharves, hospitals, prisons, schools, and many other public buildings have been constructed, and important schemes carried out. The principal sources of revenue are the alluvial tin deposits, and the plantation rubber industry, the country producing one-third of the world's supply of rubber. Tin has been worked in the Malay States for centuries and the F. M. S. have been for many years now the largest producers of tin ore in the world. The deposits worked are for the most part alluvial but the country also possesses lode deposits.

Planting enterprise in the Federated Malay States for many years had not proved very successful, but the introduction of rubber cultivation completely transformed the agricultural prospects of the country. The area under rubber at the end of 1938 was 1,613,609 acres. Approximately 251,586 acres of land are under coconuts, for which the soil and climate of these States are peculiarly well suited, and the cultivation of rice has been very much encouraged by the construction of vast irrigation works. The success of every form of agriculture and of all the efforts of the Government to develop the country by means of railways, irrigation, and other great public works, depends upon an adequate supply of labour. The Governments of the Colony and of the Federated Malay States, supported by the planters, have succeeded in securing an adequate supply of Indian labour, by a new system of recruiting and by offering higher wages and other advantages. An Agricultural Department to foster agricultural interests, to encourage the cultivation of new products, to conduct experiments and to be a general source of information for planters, is doing useful work.

In the Federated Malay States there are approximately 75,624 children attending English and Malay Schools conducted or supported by the Government. In addition to these schools there are a number of Chinese and Tamil vernacular schools which are either Government aided, or under private management.

In the three western States there is a law compelling the attendance of Malay children who live within reasonable distance of a school. In recent years there has been an increased demand by Malays for vernacular and English education.

The total area of the Federation is 27,540 square miles, with a population at the end of 1938 of 2,052,729. The principal towns are Kuala Lumpur (Sel.), pop. 136,848: Ipoh (Pk.), 60,312; Taiping (Pk.), 35,697; Seremban (N. S.), 24,813; and Kuala Lipis (Pahang), 4,552.

PERAK

Perak is the most northerly of the Federated States on the west coast, touching Province Wellesley on the north and Selangor on the south and having an area of 7,980 square miles. About 1850 the discovery of tin in Larut was followed by the immigration of Chinese in great numbers. Since the appointment of a British Resident in 1874, the record of the State has been one of remarkable progress.

The State is well watered, the Perak (with its tributaries, the Singor, the Temengor, the Rui, the Plus, the Kinta, Batang Padang, Bidor and Sungkai), being the most important rivers. Other rivers of importance are the Krian, the Kurau, and the Bernam (with its tributary, the Slim). The mountains on the east boundary, which are part of the main range of the Peninsula, rise to a height of over 7,000 feet.

Sanatoria have been established on the Larut Hills at heights varying from 3,300 to 4,500 feet. Experimental gardens with English flowers and vegetables are to be found on the Larut Hills.

The chief exports are tin and rubber. Coconuts and rice are extensively grown. In the Krian District the Government has completed an extensive scheme for the irrigation of 61,000 acres of land the larger proportion of which is already under cultivation for rice. A similar scheme with an area of 24,000 acres is in course of development in the Sungei Manik Area in Lower Perak. So far 9,737 acres are available of which 5,975 were planted in 1938.

Larut, Kinta, Batang Padang, and Klian Intan are the chief mining districts. The district of Batang Padang lies between the Kinta Valley and the Selangor boundary, and contains a little gold and wolfram mixed with its tin.

The total mileage of completed roads in Perak is (a) 1,076 of metalled and (b) 74 of unmetalled roads, 759 miles of bridle paths.

The British Resident has residencies at Taiping, the Headquarters of Government, and at Ipoh, the chief commercial centre. The chief towns are Ipoh, Taiping, Kuala Kangsar, Kampar, and Tapah. The chief port is Teluk Anson.

Since the Anglo-Siamese treaty of 1909 the territory claimed by Perak for many years, and held by Patani since 1826, has been formally ceded to Perak, and the State now includes the whole watershed of the river that gives it its name. The new territory which was taken over in 1909 and incorporated in the Upper Perak District, exceeds 1,000 square miles of area. It extends from Kedah on the West to Legeh on the East, and contains the tin mines of Klian Intan and much good stanniferous country. This territory is well watered, and the rolling plains of the Kroh plateau, 1,000 feet above the sea, afford a healthy Government station. At Tasek on the Kedah border there is a small natural lake. At the time when the territory was taken over the population was about 3,000 of various nationalities.

By an Act of Parliament which received the Royal assent on November 16, 1934, the territory of the Dindings was restored to Perak and has formed part of the State since February, 1935. The area of the Territory, which contains the natural harbour of Lumut, is 190 square miles.

SELANGOR

This protected Malay State, containing an area of 3,160 square miles, lies on the western coast of the Malay Peninsula, and is bounded by the Protected States of Perak on the North and of Negri Sembilan on the south, extending inland to the mountains in the centre of the peninsula, which divide it from Pahang.

The Government is administered by the Sultan, who is advised by the British Resident and by the State Council. The State is divided into the following six districts:- 1.—Kuala Lumpur, containing the town of Kuala Lumpur, where the Residency and principal Government Offices are situated, and which also contains the richest tin mines that have yet been developed. 2.—Klang. This district contains the Sultan's residence and also Port Swettenham, the principal port, which lies at the mouth of the Klang river. 3.—Kuala Langat, an agricultural district. 4.—Kuala Selangor, a coastal district containing large areas of developed and potential padi land. 5.—Ulu Selangor, a district adjoining Perak and Pahang, containing much valuable mining land. 6.—Ulu Langat, an inland mining district on the borders of Negri Sembilan.

Each district is under the charge of a District Officer, from whom the Malay Penghulus (in charge of the mukims into which each district is sub-divided) receive instructions.

The Police Force consists of 19 gazetted and superior officers, 997 subordinate police officers and constables and 67 detectives.

The population of Selangor in 1884, when the first census was taken, was 46,568; but at the end of 1938 it was estimated to be 664,847, of whom 314,927 were Chinese; 143,885 Malays, 191,782 natives of India, 3,844 Europeans, 2,496 Eurasians and 7,913 others.

The principal industries of the State, and those from which it derives the largest portion of its revenue, are alluvial tin mining and rubber cultivation.

In addition to its rich mineral resources, the State possesses large tracts of land well adapted for agriculture and the growth of staple products, such as rice and coconuts, by small-holders. Pineapple cultivation is a recent and thriving occupation and minor plantations of coffee and pepper have been successfully conducted. To encourage pioneer planters, grants of land have (in recent years) been made, on special terms, for the planting of African oil palm and nipah palm. But the principal agricultural product here, as in the other Malay States, is rubber. 746,337 acres of land had been alienated for agricultural and building purposes by the end of the year 1938 comprising 511,977 acres under rubber, 117,905 acres under coconuts, 8,148 acres under coffee, 15,646 acres under padi, 21,404 acres under oil palm and 24,536 acres under cultivation by native small-holders. The value of rubber exported in 1938 was $35,356,682.

The principal exports are rubber, tin, pineapples, copra and oil palm products. The principal imports are rice, petroleum, oils, cotton piece goods, manufactured foodstuffs, tobacco and livestock.

There were 52,591 acres alienated for mining—chiefly tin—at the end of 1938. The recorded output of tin concentrate from the State amounted to 281,112 pikuls as compared with 546,834 pikuls in 1937. The value of this output at the average local price of tin of $95.59 per pikul was $19,836,917 as against a total value of $49,047,005 at an average price of $110.79 for 1937. The Malayan Collieries, Limited, turned out 477,908 tons of coal against 627,890 tons in 1937. The quality of the coal is reported to be excellent.

There is frequent and regular communication, by means of coasting steamers, between the Straits Settlements and Selangor. From Kuala Lumpur the chief town on the mainland, a network of excellent arterial roads covers the State and extends into the neighbouring States of Perak, Negri Sembilan and Pahang while branch lines of railway link the territory on the west to the main trunk line which passes through Selangor.

NEGRI SEMBILAN

(The value of the dollar is 2s. 4d.) (A pikul is 133½ pounds av.)

Geography, including Climate and History

The State of Negri Sembilan, the smallest of the Federated Malay States, lies on the West Coast of the Malay Peninsula to the south of the States of Selangor and Pahang. It is in fact a federation of "Nine States", consisting of the four major States of Sungei Ujong, Jelebu, Johol and Rembau, and the five minor States of Ulu Muar, Jempul, Terachi, Gunong Pasir and Inas. Sungei Ujong is mentioned in a Javanese poem in A.D., as being subject to the Javanese Empire of Majapahit. In the 15th century it was ruled by Chiefs of the old kingdom of Malacca. Most of the Malay inhabitants of the States are descended from immigrants from Menangkabau in Sumatra, and have an interesting exogamous, tribal and matriarchal social organisation.

This immigration appears to have begun in the 16th century. The original group seems to have consisted of Sungei Ujong, Klang (now in Selangor), Jelebu, Rembau, Naning (now in Malacca), Segamat (now in Johore), Pasir Besar (now in Johore, its place having been taken by Johol), Johol, (now Inas) and Ulu Pahang (now partly in the Temerloh District of Pahang). After the capture of Malacca from the Portuguese by the Dutch and Johore Malays in 64 A.D., Johore took a leading part in Negri Sembilan politics until 1773 A.D., when the Undang or Chiefs of the present four major States invited a Sumatra prince Raja Melewar, ancestor of the present Yang Di-pertuan Besar to preside over the federation.

In 1874 the Dato' Klana, Undang of Sungei Ujong, the most important of the nine States invited the assistance of the British Government to maintain his rule, and a British Resident was appointed.

In 1883, Jelebu applied for a British Officer, and Rembau agreed to refer all its disputes to the British Government, and in 1887 accepted a British Adviser. In 1889, the Yang Di-pertuan of Sri Menanti who no longer effectively presided over the whole of Negri Sembilan, the Rulers of Tampin (a small principality which had come into existence to the east of Rembau) and Rembau asked for a Resident and agreed to a confederation known as "The Old Negri Sembilan". In 1895, the Resident of this confederation took charge of Sungei Ujong and of Jelebu, and the modern Negri Sembilan was constituted. Finally in 1898, the Yang Di-pertuan of Sri Menanti was elected titular Ruler of the whole State.

The area of the State is approximately 2,550 square miles. It is bordered on the south by Malacca and Johore, on the north by Selangor, on the east by Pahang, and on the west by the Straits of Malacca.

The Gunong Hantu which is on the Pahang border is the highest mountain, reaching 4,799 feet, while the highest mountain within the border is Telepak Burek (3,915 feet).

There are no large rivers, and the State does not suffer from disastrous floods which sometimes cause such great loss in the larger river valleys of Malaya.

The climate is hot, moist and equable. The shade temperature has but a small annual range, and averages 81°F. It seldom rises above 92° or falls below 68°.

The average monthly rainfall throughout the year was 5.84 inches, the highest recorded being 15.73 inches at Port Dickson in August and the lowest .54 inch at Mantin in February.

Government

The supreme authority in the State is vested in the Yang Di-pertuan Besar and the Udang in Council.

The Council of the Yang Di-pertuan Besar and Undang which consisted of His Highness the Yang Di-pertuan Besar as President, the British Resident, the four Undang, or Ruling Chiefs of the four major divisions of Negri Sembilan, and the Tengku Besar of Sri Menanti formed the Upper Chamber. The Lower Chamber, or State Council, consisted of the British Resident as president, and eight Official, and seven Unofficial Members. Legislation is introduced into the State Council and if passed is submitted to His Highness and the Undang for confirmation or amendment, and assent is finally given by His Highness and the Undang.

Matters which concern only the Muhammadan religion or Malay custom are dealt with by the Upper Chamber and that Chamber can legislate on such matters by means of Orders in Council. The Upper Chamber also exercises the statutory executive powers vested in the former State Council.

For the purpose of the local government, the State is divided into five administrative districts, namely, Seremban, Kuala Pilah, Tampin, Jelebu and Port Dickson, in charge of officers responsible to the Resident. There are State Heads of Departments in charge of the Public Works, Medical, Police, Mines, Surveys, Agricultural and Forest Departments in the State.

The principal towns and villages in each district are for local Government purposes under the charge of Sanitary Boards over which the officer in charge of the district presides. The Boards include unofficial members nominated by the Resident. The work of these Boards is regulated by the Sanitary Boards Enactment Cap 137.

Population

The estimated population is 281,089.

Railways

The State is covered by the F.M.S. Railways with a total length of lines amounting to about 130 miles and 58 chains.

Roads

The total length of metal roads at the end of the year was 570 miles 15.75 chains of which 469 miles were asphalted.

Shipping

There are two small ports in the state, Port Dickson. and Pengkalan Kempas on the estuary of the Linggi River on a tributary of which Seremban stands. 614 steam vessels entered and cleared the ports with a total tonnage of 78,217.

Revenue

The revenue for 1938 was $8,965,407 and the expenditure was $13,882,431. Imports in 1938 were valued at $8,553,426 and exports at $21,910,712.

PAHANG

The State of Pahang lies between Trengganu and Johore, and extends along the eastern side of the peninsula from 2 deg. 27 min. to 4 deg. 47 min. N., its coast line being about 130 miles in length. The area of the State is estimated at 13,820 square miles, and its principal river, which drains a large extent of country, is known by the same name. The river Pahang is, however, owing to its shallowness, navigable for small craft only. The country is sparsely populated, there being, according to the census of 1931, 180,811 inhabitants, as compared with 146,064 in 1921.

The capital of the State is Kuala Lipis, situated at the mouth of the Lipis river where is also the seat of Government. The State is under British protection, and in August, 1888, the Sultan, acting under the advice of the Sultan of Johore, applied for a British Resident to assist in the administration of the country, which request was acceded to in October of that year.

The predominant rock is slate, but granite, sandstone, limestone, quartz, and schist abound, while traces of volcanic action at some remote age are shown by the presence of basalt, trachyte, etc. As regards its mineralogy the State has always possessed a high reputation for its product of gold and tin. Though during recent periods these have been but little sought, the wonderful old gold workings discovered by Messrs. Knaggs and Gower show that the State must, at some very remote time, have been well known and populated. Gold is worked on a large scale at Raub by the Raub Australian Mining Company, and on a small scale elsewhere by Chinese and Malays. The Pahang Consolidated Company, Ltd., have large tin mines at Sungei Lembing in the Kuantan district, and there is much tin mining in the Bentong-Raub districts and at Gambang in the Kuantan district.

The revenue for 1935 amounted to $5,422,021 and the expenditure to $5,186,734; The State on 1st January, 1936, owed $25,509,504 to the other States of the Federation. The indebtedness incurred by the State is represented by public improvements that are to prove of a remunerative character in years to come. Excellent roads have been constructed, opening up land for planting and aiding prospecting for minerals.

All principal towns are now connected by telegraph and the new trunk railway which connects the F. M. S. Railways and the Siamese Railways has been completed. It is now possible to travel by rail from Singapore to Bangkok through Kelantan.

The quantity of copra exported in 1935 amounted to 542 tons as against 420 in 1934. The exports of rubber were valued at $2,390,134 as against $3,240,915 in 1934. The quantity of tin-ore exported was 2029 tons valued at $2,869,848 being a decrease in quantity of 245 tons and a decrease in value of $317,272 as compared with 1934. The total gold from the State placed on the market in 1935 was 22,909 ounces of an estimated value of $1,224,062. The Raub Australian Gold Mining Company is responsible for 92 per cent. of this total output.

The total value of trade for 1935 was $9,316,979 as against $10,357,242, a decreas of over 10 per cent.

UNFEDERATED MALAY STATES

The Malay States not included in the Federation are Johore, Kedah, Perlis, Kelantan and Trengganu.

Article 3 of the Johore Treaty of the 11th December, 1885, provided for the appointment of a British Agent in Johore. By an agreement dated the 12th May, 1914, this was altered so as to provide for the appointment of a British officer to be called the General Adviser, whose advice must be asked and acted upon in all matters affecting the general administration of the country and on all questions other than thoes touching Malay religion and custom.

The States of Kedah, Perlis, Kelantan and Trengganu came under British protection on the 9th July, 1909, when, in execution of the Treaty of the 10th March, 1909, the Siamese Government transferred to the British Government all suzerainty, protection, administration and control over these four States. British Advisers on that day took over from Siamese Advisers in Kedah, Perlis and Kelantan. In Trengganu, an officer styled the British Agent assumed duty.

The Sultan of Trengganu, later, expressed a desire that his State should be administrated upon an improved basis, and, by a Treaty with His Majesty's Government dated the 24th May, 1919, agreed to receive a British Adviser (in place of the British Agent provided for by an earlier Treaty of the 22nd April, 1910) and to ask and follow his advice upon all matters affecting the general administration of the country and all questions other than those touching the Mohammedan religion.

The Treaty of 1909 also provided for the loan of £4,000,000 by the F.M.S. Government to Siam for the purpose of building a railway southward from Bangkok to connect up with the F.M.S. Railways system via Kelantan. This sum was subsequently increased to £4,750,000, in consequence of a decision to connect up also via Kedah. The railway via Kedah was opened to traffic on the 1st July, 1918. A fast weekly passenger service between Bangkok and Penang was inaugurated on 2nd January, 1922. The International Express leaves Bangkok every Wednesday and Saturday at midday and arrives at Prai (the mainland station for Penang) on Thursday and Sunday evenings. It leaves Prai every Monday and Friday morning and arrives in Bangkok on Tuesday and Saturday mornings.

In general terms, it may be said that the development of the Unfederated Malay States in the last decade has been even more remarkable than that of the Federated Malay States. Their revenue, for instance, in 10 years has more than quadrupled.

Although each of the five Unfederated Malay States preserves its individuality with the greatest solicitude, there is the friendliest feeling, not only amongst them, but also between them and the Federated Malay States and the Colony of the Straits Settlements; and in any matter which tends to their common advantage, yet does not affect their individuality, there is ready co-operation. The States differ from one another in many respects, both great and small. As examples of the difference in the smaller matters, it may be mentioned that Kedah, Perlis and Trengganu adhere to the Mohammedan calendar, whereas Johore and Kelantan have adopted the Christian calendar. The system of internal administration differs very greatly; on broad lines, however, the resemblance between the States is strong. They are all Mohammedan countries, and are governed by a Ruler who is advised by a State Council. (Johore has separate Legislative and Executive Councils; in the other States the Councils are both Legislative and Executive). They use the coinage and the currency notes of the Straits Settlements. Their European officials are British officers, almost all of whom are lent, on deputation, to them by the Governments of the Straits Settlements and the Federated Malay States. Johore, Kedah, Kelantan and Trengganu have their separate issues of stamps. The small State of Perlis (which in earlier days was a part of Kedah) still uses the Kedah stamps.

JOHORE

This State occupies the southern portion of the Malay Peninsula and has an area of about 7,500 square miles. The State is ruled by a Sultan, who is juristically independent, but politically under the protection of the British Government. The present Sultan, Ibrahim, was born in 1873, and succeeded his father, the late Sultan Abubakar, in 1895, being crowned on the 2nd of November of that year. On the 1st January, 1916, the dignity of an Honorary Knight Grand Cross of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George was conferred on His Highness the Sultan by His Majesty the King, and the investiture took place at Johore Bahru on May 11th, 1916. His Highness has been decorated with the Order of the British Empire in further recognition of his services during the Great War and more recently with Grand cross of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire. Since 1910, the Sultan has had the services of an officer of the Malayan Civil Service as General Adviser, and other members of that service are seconded to control various departments, with the result that the government is now on a sound footing and financially one of the wealthier of the Malay States with large savings to meet the present fall in revenue. The country has made great progress in material prosperity and has attracted a good deal of European capital, invested in planting enterprises.

The revenue for 1938 amounted to $17,922,090 against $20,196,688 in 1937, and the expenditure to $18,853,093 in 1938 against $18,397,752 in 1937. Surplus assets at the end of 1938 amounted to $42,923,851. The railway, which connects Singapore with the F. M. S. system, was completed in 1909. Along its 120 miles it provides access to the extensive areas of valuable forest land not conveniently reached by the natural waterways. It is operated and leased by the F. M. S. Railways Department, which now controls the whole of the railways in the Malay Peninsula. A causeway has been constructed over the Straits of Johore, between the mainland of Johre and the Island of Singapore, carrying a railway track and a roadway. It was opened for passenger trains on 1st, October, 1923. The roadway was opened to vehicular traffic on 28th, June, 1924.

The capital is the town of Johore Bahru, or new Johore, as distinguished from Johore Lama, or old Johore, the former seat of the Sultans of Johore, which was situated a few miles up the wide estuary of the Johore river. The new town is a flourishing little place on the nearest point of the mainland to Singapore island, and lying about 17 miles to the north-east of Singapore city, in 1° 26′ N. Public Works have received a good deal of attention in recent years and $6,827,640 was spent on them in 1938. There are now about 897 miles of roads in the State, and new roads are being constructed.

The estimated population of the State in 1938 was 709,870, of whom 1,080 were Europeans, 308,240, Malays, 311,620 Chinese, 84,090 Indians and 4,840 others. The Chinese are chiefly found as cultivators of rubber.

	1937	1938
Imports	$ 47,288,555	$ 43,380,224
Exports	$106,119,505	$ 62,758,582
Total	$153,408,060	$106,138,806

European and Chinese have taken up large areas for planting, chiefly rubber, pineapples and coconuts. The export of tapioca was 6,756 piculs in 1938, as compared with 12,604 piculs in 1937, and the value were $85,707 and $25,260 respectively. The export of rubber in 1938 amounted to 1,497,352 piculs, valued at $44,394,960 against 2,067,153 piculs in 1937 valued at $86,349,336. A remarkable feature of the rubber industry in this State is the large amount of land taken up by the Japanese. In 1938, 766,751 piculs of copra, valued at $2,683,629 and 351,106 piculs of areca-nuts, valued at $2,111,773 were exported.

At the present time the principal exports of Johore are the carefully cultivated rubber, copra, gambier, pepper and areca-nuts, and the natural products of tin, timber, rattans and damar. For almost all such produce Singapore is the port of shipment.

Johore is rich in iron ore, and a mine is being successfully worked by Japanese in Batu Pahat and 491,550 tons of ore worth $2,457,752 were exported in 1938. The export of tin ore in 1938 amounted to 18,015 piculs.

KELANTAN

This State lies on the Eastern Coast of the Malay Peninsula between latitudes 4 deg. 42 min. and 6 deg. 15 min. North and longitudes 101 deg. 19 min. and 102 deg. 37 min. East. It embraces an area of 5,750 square miles. Behind a low sandy coast line of some 60 miles in length lies a fertile plain of about 1000 square miles in area, densely populated and closely cultivated with rice, coconut and fruit trees. South of this plain the country is hilly and broken.

The total population for year 1938 was 399, 299 of whom over 350, 526 were Malays, 29,294 Chinese, 11,399 Indians and 85 Europeans.

Kota Bharu, six miles up the Kelantan River, is the capital, and the chief port is Tumpat at its mouth. His Highness the Sultan resides at Kota Bharu which is the capital and administrative headquarters of the State.

The chief exports are copra, rubber, betulnut, poultry, cattle, dried fish, jungle produce, tin ore, manganese ore and iron ore. The characteristic features of the climate are uniform temperature, high humidity, and copious rainfall, arising mainly from the situation of the State in the equatorial zone of constant precipitation. Actually the State is just far enough north and distant from the Straits of Malacca, for its climate to be appreciably affected by the Central Asian mountain mass. Most of the rest of the peninsula shares with Kelantan the heavy rainfall in November, December and January, during the North East Monsoon, but only Trengganu and Kedah have anything approaching the Kelantan continuous dry period from February to September, most other regions having only a short dry spell in February with a second wet season reaching its maximum in April. This climate rhythm is however far less marked than it is in countries bordering on the Indian Ocean.

In 1938, the revenue had risen to $3,134,035 and the expenditure to $3,001,033. The public debt now stands at $5,119,069. The debit balance of the State at the end of 1938 was $3,102,295. The value of the imports in 1938 was $7,434,361 against $7,941,213 in 1937. The principal imports were: textiles, tobacco, petroleum, benzine, tinned milk, drugs and medicines, sugar and provisions. The tonnage of the steamers using Kelantan ports was 366,228 in 1938 against 141,000 in 1937. There is regular steamship communication with Bangkok and Singapore. The State had at the end of 1938, 291 miles of road open to wheeled traffic, the two main roads being those from Kota Bharu to Kuala Krai (45 miles) and to Pasir Puteh (26 miles). The latter has been extended to give connection to Kuala Besut in the State of Trengganu. By rail the State has been some years connected with Bangkok, and also with Penang, through lower Thailand and Kedah. Since the opening in 1931 of the East Coast Railway, there has been direct communication with Singapore through Pahang. During 1938 the Mail train services were greatly improved and there are now two well-equipped Mail trains twice Weekly, between Singapore and Kota Bharu. It is also connected by telegraph and telephone with the two chief ports, Tumpat and Bachok, and with Kuala Krai, Pasir Puteh, Temangan, Sungai Nal and Pasir Mas. There are three wireless transmitting and receiving sets in Kelantan, one at Kota Bharu, belonging to the Royal Air Force, but worked and maintained by the Kelantan Government, one at Kuala Krai and one at Kemubu. Both the last named Stations belong to the Federated Malay States Railways.

TRENGGANU

With a territory of about 5,050 square miles, an extensive sea-board and a population at the 1931 census of 179,789, Trengganu is the least developed of allthe Malay States. It lies between latitude 3°53″ and 5°51″ North latitude and the meridians of 102° 23′ and 103° 30′ East Longitude. The capital is Kuala Trengganu situated on both banks of the mouth of the Trengganu River, with a population of 14,000.

The State possesses about 218 miles of roads upkept by the Public Works Department and about 150 miles of subsidiary roads upkept by the Land Offices or in a few cases farmed out. Communication with the interior is by good paths and rivers. The latter, however, are not navigable beyond a certain point from the sea owing to rapids. There are no railways (except for 3 light railways on Mines).

There is a sixty six-mile trunk road from Kuala Trengganu. to the Northern boundary.

Regular steamship communication is maintained with Singapore and Bangkok, and locally built motor-boats maintain a passenger service along the Trengganu coast.

During the North-East Monsoon, from November till March, the weather is a times such as to close the coast to shipping for short periods. The rainfall and temperature conditions are similar to those in the other Malay States.

Telegraph communication was established with Singapore in 1922. Telegraph offices are at Kuala Trengganu, Kretai, Dungun, Kemaman Besut and Kuala Byang. There are small local telephone exchanges at Kuala Trengganu, Kemaman and Besut.

A branch of the Mercantile Bank of India was opened in April, 1936.

The total net value of trade of the State in 1938 was $15,337,636 as against $17,441,816 in 1937.

The chief exports in 1938 were:

Copra	$ 97,592
Dried Fish	647,495
Tin Ore	475,135
Haematite	4,526,580
Manganese	184,432
Para Rubber	2,138,893
Arecanuts	118,977

The chief imports in 1938 were:

Rice	$1,477,284
Sugar	215,177
Tobacco, Cigarettes & Cigars	480,878
Cotton Stuffs	473,515
Petroleum	370,159

The Malays are ingenious and industrious, and excel as boat-builders and fishermen. They also engage in silk weaving, net making, and iron, brass and nickel manufacturing.

The revenue of the State for the year 1938 A.D. amounted to $2,427,004 and the expenditure to $2,360,447 the corresponding figures being as above.

By an agreement between His Majesty's Government and the Government of Trengganu, dated 24th May, 1919, the then Sultan agreed to receive a British Adviser in place of an Agent, whose advice must be asked and acted upon in all matters affecting the general administration of the country.

The indebtedness of the State at the end of 1938 stood at $2,860,000. In 1923 the State obtained a loan of 1,000,000 from the Government of Straits Settlement for development purposes, and this was followed by further loans of $1,000,000 in 1925, $1,500,000 in 1928, $100,000 in 1932. These have enabled the State (by resumption of concessions) to recover control of important natural resources, and to incur large expenditure on essential works of development—surveys, machinery, buildings and roads.

The reigning Sultan is His Highness Sir Suleiman Badru'l-alam Shah, K.C.M.G. ibni almerhum Sultan Zainalabidin. He was installed Sultan on 26th May, 1920 and he governs the State in consultation with his State Council.

KEDAH

Situated on the north-west coast of the Malay Peninsula, between the parallels of 5 deg. 05 min. and 6 deg. 40 min. North and the meridians of 99 deg. 40 min. and 101 deg. 10 min. E., Kedah has an area of about 3,660 square miles. In the north and east the country is hilly, but the plains along the coast are well-watered and fertile. In the northern part of the State the chief agricultural produce is rice. In the southern part the rubber industry has grown to large dimensions. The country is favourable for cattle raising.

The State came under British protection in 1909, and since then great progress has been made. Road making, bridge building and canal extension are features of the present régime. An excellent motor road running to the northern frontier of the State joins the road system of southern Siam and Songkhla on the East Coast, and the railway from Bukit Mertajam, in Province Wellesley, has been extended through Alor Star, the capital of Kedah, to connect with the Siamese railways on the frontier of Perlis. This connection has been completed and regular railway communication between Singapore and Bangkok has been established. The money order system has been introduced and the telegraph and telephone systems have been extended. The telephone system is connected with Penang and southwards as far as Singapore. The towns of Alor Star, Sungei Patani, Kulim, Lunas, Padang Serai and Bandar Bahru are lighted by electricity.

At the 1931 census the population was 429,691, of whom 286,262 were Malays, 78,415 Chinese, 50,824 Indians, 411 Europeans and 13,779 other races.

PERLIS

Perlis is a small state on the west coast of the Malay Peninsula, the area being about 316 square miles. It is situated to the north of Kedah, and its conditions are practically identical with those of Kedah. The British Advisers have followed the policy which marks British control in the Federated Malay States, and the active co-operation of the Raja and his Council has led to a great improvement in the internal administration since the assumption of British suzerainty in 1909. The Federated Malay States have completed the extension of their railway system through Perlis to link up with the Thailand railway system. Rail communication with Bangkok has been maintained since the 1st July, 1918.

The total population at the 1931 census was 49,296 including 39,716 Malays, 6,500 Chinese, 966 Indians and 2,114 others. Of the "others" 1,611 were Thai (Siamese). The population then showed an increase of 23% over the 1921 figures. The estimated population in the middle of 1938 (determined by the balancing equation method) was 55,446 being comprised of 44,360 Malays, 8,103 Chinese, 6 Europeans, 978 Indians and 1,991 others (mostly Thai).

The revenue in the first year of British Protection was $145,026. For the Mohammedan year 1357 (1938-39) the revenue was $747,756 and expenditure $700,190, as compared with $728,531 and $634,483 in the previous year. With the transference of suzerainty a debt of $495,394 was taken over by the F. M. S. The debt has since been paid.

Kangar, the Government Headquarters, is a busy little town of about 2,000 inhabitants. The shop-keepers besides selling sundry goods also export padi—the staple product of the country—as well as ducks and fowls for the Penang market. The chief imports are cottons for native clothing, kerosene, tobacco and sundry odds and ends used by the Malay country people. His Highness the Raja lives at Arau, 6 miles from Kangar, on the main trunk railway from Singapore to Bangkok. In 1910 the State Council abolished the general duty of 3 per cent on imported goods. Till 1932 (A. H. 1351) the only goods on which imported duties were levied were spirits, beer, wine, tobacco, kerosene, petroleum, matches, sugar and cartridges. At the end of 1932 as a result of the Ottawa Conference, additional duties were imposed on a number of articles, the chief of which are cotton goods, milk, perfumery and rubber goods. Articles manufactured within the British Empire are generally entitled to preferential rates of duty. The general duty of 5 per cent on exports has been abolished and replaced by duties on rice, tin-ore, rubber, jungle produce and other specific products. In 1938 14,481,82 pikuls of tin-ore were exported. Many of the limestone hills of Perlis contain caves rich in guano deposits. The chief nature cultivation is padi. Rubber is represented by a few native plantations.

(Note : 1 dollar=2s.4d. 1 pikul = 133⅓ lbs.)

SIAMESE MONEY, WEIGHTS AND MEASURES

MONEY

4 Sálü'ngs	or 1 Bät or Tical	=	$0·60	50 Ch'ängs	or 1 Häp	=	$2,400·00
4 Bäts	or 1 Tämlü'ng	=	$2·40
20 Tämlü'ngs	or 1 Ch'äng	=	$48·00	100 Häps	or 1 Tära	=	$240,000·00

WEIGHTS

The standard of weight being the coin of the country, weights are designated by the same terms. A Tical weighs 236 grains troy.

The Siamese standard of weight is just double that of the Chinese, and goods are bought and sold in Bangkok more by the Chinese than the Siamese standard.

LONG MEASURE

1 Niw			=	$\frac{13}{16}$ inch
12 Niws	make	1 K'ú'p	=	$9\frac{3}{4}$ inches
2 K'ú'ps	make	1 Säwk	=	$19\frac{1}{2}$ inches
4 Säwks	make	1 Wah	=	78 inches
20 Wahs	make	1 Sën	=	130 feet
400 Sëns	make	1 Yot	=	$9\frac{7}{8}$ statute miles

Note.—Timber is bought by the Yök, which is 64 Säwk in length by 1 Säwk in width or 36,864 Siamese inches, being equivalent to 169 square feet.

DRY MEASURE

1 Tänan	=	$1\frac{1}{2}$ pints	25 Tänans	make 1 Sat
20 Tänans	make 1 Táng	= 15 pints	100 Tángs or 80 Sat	make 1 Keean (Coyan).

A Keean is 20 Piculs; a Picul is $133\frac{1}{3}$lbs. avoirdupois.

The metric system is widely used in commerce. A law promulgated in 1924 provides that the metric system shall be the standardised and legalised system of weights and measures in Siam, but this law is optional for the time being.

Situation, Area and Population

The Dutch possessions in Asia are situated in the Indian Archipelago, between 6° N. and 11° S. latitude and 95° 40′ and about 141° E. longitude. They comprise Sumatra with adjacent islands, the archipelago of Bintang or Riouw, the archipelago of Lingga, the Karimon, Tambelan, Anambas and Natoena islands, the Islands Bangka and Billiton, Java and Madoera, the western, southern and eastern part of Borneo, Celebes and all the other islands eastward of Borneo and Java to 141° E. longitude, with the exception of the eastern part of Timor (Timor-Dilli). Java and Madoera extend over 132,274.1 k. m. and the other islands together over 1,767,476.9 k. m.

With regard to the legal position, the population is divided into Europeans, with those who are considered equal to them (half-castes, Armenians, Japanese), and natives, with those who are considered equal to them (Chinese, Klings, Arabs, etc.). In 1930 the total number of Europeans amounted to 242,372 (census figures). The number of Chinese, Arabs and other foreign Asiatics in 1930 (census figures) was 1,344,878 of whom 709,216 were in Java and Madoera. The natives numbered 41,719,524 in Java and Madoera, and the total number of natives on all the other islands together amounted to 19,011,501. The total population of the Netherlands Indies at the time of the 1930 census was 60,727,000 inhabitants, since when the number of souls is estimated to have increased by approximately 4 millions.

A great part of the Europeans are employed in, or retired from, the Government service; next in number are the planters, traders and industrialists. The Arabs, Chinese, and other Orientals are almost all tradesmen, but it must be mentioned that some Chinese are in possession of, or are employed on, plantations in Java, and that more than 20,000 Chinese are working as labourers on the tobacco estates on the East Coast of Sumatra, and that thousands of Chinese labourers are employed under European superintendence in the exploitation of the tin mines of Bangka and Billiton. The natives cultivate the soil; in the larger places they also are mechanics, but the practice of the handicrafts is for the greater part in the hands of Chinese. Of the people of Java only 4½ per cent live in cities of more than 50,000 inhabitants, whilst in the other islands the percentage is considerably lower.

History and Government

When the Dutch in the last years of the sixteenth century established themselves in the Archipelago they found the Portuguese there. In order to be strong against other European rivals, the Dutch East Indian Company was established in 1602 by charter of the States General of the United Netherlands, granting a monopoly for the trade in all the countries east of the Cape of Good Hope to the Straits of Magellan, and the right to make treaties with Indian princes, to make war, build fortifications, and give commissions to civil and military officers, etc. The East Indian Company was nearly independent and disposed of large capital. The first proceedings were commercial, but soon the Company extended its power and conquered territory in Java and the Moluccas. The first "loge" was established at Bantam, then at Jakatra, where the Governor-General, J. P. Coen, made a fortress, which he called Batavia (1619). After a long period of great prosperity the Company fell into decay, the difficulties increased under a heavy burden of debts, and in 1800 the States General cancelled the charter and took the administration of the possessions into their own hands. At the same time the British, during the war with France and the Netherlands, conquered the greater part of the Dutch colonies. In 1802, by the treaty of peace concluded at Amiens, the colonies, with the exception of Ceylon, were restored to the Batavian Republic, as the Netherlands were then called, but during the war with England that was soon afterwards declared the Dutch again lost all their possessions. After the fall of Napoleon, in 1815, the greater part of the colonies were restored to the Kingdom of the Netherlands, and by the London treaty of 17th March, 1824, Malacca and the establishments on the continent of India were exchanged for Benkoelen.

Netherlands Indies are now governed in the name of the Queen of the Netherlands by a Governor-General, who is obliged to ask in some cases the advice of the Council of the Netherlands Indies, consisting of a Vice-President and four members, assisted by a secretary. Since the beginning of 1918 a representative college, called Volksraad, has been instituted, consisting of a Member-President and 60 members, assisted by a secretary. The President is appointed by the Crown, half of the members are elected by the members of the local boards and the other half are appointed by the Governor-General, who in cases of legislation acts in accordance with the Volksraad; according to a new regulation 38 members will be elected and 22 members appointed. The Governor-General is Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy, and is seconded by a Lieutenant-General, Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Chief of the War Department, and a Vice-Admiral or Rear-Admiral, Commandant of the Navy and Chief of the Marine Department, and further by six Directors of the Departments of Justice, Finance, Internal Administration, Education and Public Worship, Economic Affairs, and Communication and Waterways.

Netherlands-India is divided into provinces, governments and residences, under the administration of Governors or Residents and their Assistant Residents, and "Controleurs." The direct government of the population is entrusted to natives with the titles of Regent, Wedono, and Assistant-Wedono in Java, and other titles in the other islands. In appointing the native officials it is considered a rule that the people in the different islands, residencies or districts must be governed, if possible, by their own chieftains. In Soerakarta and Djogjakarta (in Java) and in a great many residencies of other islands the native princes have still, to a certain degree, the rule of the country in their hands, but they are dependent on the Government of Netherlands-India.

The Supreme Court is located at Batavia, and Courts of Justice are established at Batavia, Samarang, Soerabaja, Padang, Medan, and Macasser; there are also Residential Courts in all the Residencies. The Courts of Justice for the natives are in the capitals of residencies, divisions, regencies and districts; they have different names, as landraad, rapat, regentschapsgerecht, districtsgerecht. Since 1914 a large number of lower courts called "landgerecht" have been established for the trial of petty offences committed by Europeans as well as by natives and other Asiatics.

Climate

The climate in general is fairly damp; the average relative humidity varies for different places between 80 and 90 per cent. The maximum temperature reaches about 36° Centigrade, but in some mountainous regions the minimum temperature occasionally falls below freezing point, in the dry season. At Batavia the mean daily temperature is 25° Centigrade. The mean temperature of other places may be deduced from the Batavia temperature by subtracting 0.6° for every 100 metres of height above sea level. The monsoons have a great influence on the climate. South of the equator from April to October the south-east monsoon, and from October to April the north-west monsoon, is blowing, while north of the equator the south-west monsoon blows from April to October and the north-east monsoon from October to April. The changes of the monsoons are marked by periods of three to four weeks, during which the wind blows from different directions and thunderstorms and calms are frequent. The day heat is fairly uniform during the whole year; the nights during the south-east monsoon are fairly cool. The west monsoon is the rainy season. The annual rainfall is above 3,000 millimetres in a great part of the high mountain regions. The mean annual rainfall in Paloe 549 mm., at Tombo 6711.

Products

The islands of the Indian Archipelago have generally a very fertile soil and are rich in useful products. The most important products of Java are: Rice, sugar, coffee, tea, tobacco, cinchona bark, rubber, copra, fibres, maize, ground nuts, kapok, tapioca produce, teak timber; of Sumatra: tobacco, coffee, pepper, tea, fibres, rubber, gums, tea, palm oil: of Borneo and Celebes: copra, rubber, gums, rattans, maize, coffee, hides.

Diamonds are found in Borneo; gold and silver in Sumatra, Celebes, Borneo and Java; copper ores in Sumatra and Timor; iron ores in Celebes, Sumatra and Borneo; tin placers of great importance in Bangka, Billiton and Singkep, and small alluvial tin deposits in Sumatra and on some other islands; lead ores in Sumatra, Celebes. Borneo and Lombok; zinc ores in Java and Sumatra; lignites and coal of better quality in Borneo, Sumatra and Java, manganese ore of very pure quality in Java. Nickel ore is found in Celebes; platinum in Borneo; chrome ore in Celebes, Borneo, and Lesser Sunda isles; tungsten in the tin islands; titaniferous magnetite sands in Java and other islands; cinnabar in Sumatra; antimony ores in Borneo and in other parts of the Archipelago, arsenic ores in Borneo; traces of molybdenite in Borneo and Sumatra; small quantities of bismuth in Borneo, Celebes and Sumatra. Iodine is produced from saline springs in Java; sulphur is produced from volcanic mud; phosphates are found in Java and in some other islands; magnesite in some islands of the eastern part of the Archipelago. Salt of excellent quality is made in Madoera and also on some other islands by solar evaporation of sea water. The production of mineral oil in Java, Sumatra, Borneo and Ceram is a very profitable one.

The possession of the soil by the natives is strongly protected by law. As a general rule the ground cannot be sold to foreigners, not even to Dutchmen, nor to their descendants who are born in India. The Government is authorized to dispose of uncultivated grounds and grant parts of them for a certain period to foreigners.

Revenue and Finance

The revenue of the colony is derived from different taxes, viz., import and export duties, excise, ground taxes, personal tax, income tax, property tax, corporation profits tax, slaughter tax, licences, succession duties, stamp duties, duty on public sales, transfer and assignment duty, monopolies (opium, salt, pawn-shops), mines (tin and (coal), forests, railways, mining-and agricultural concessions.

The salt required for the Government monopoly is made in Madoera, where the people deliver it into the Government godowns at a fixed rate per hectolitre and to a smaller extent on Government's salt farms in Madoera and Grisee (residency Bodjonagoro) where the salt is produced under Government management.

The use of opium and the profits the Government derives from the régie system are declining.

The pawnshop-monopoly is gradually being extended all over the archipelago much to the benefit of the lower classes for which it functions as a banking-system granting the small credits of not less than 10 cents on the collateral of goods against moderate fixed rates of interest.

The tin mines of Bangka are exploited by the Government. Chinese labour is extensively used for working the tinplacers, also for transportation and melting the tin concentrate, and for various other purposes. Some of the placer-diggings are directly worked by the Government; others are operated by European or Chinese contractors under Government control. Electric power is supplied to all the main districts; the smaller districts are worked by steam.

The monetary system of Netherlands-India for which in accordance with that of the Netherlands the limping standard with free coinage of gold is adopted, consists of gold coins of the value of ten and five guilders, silver coins of two guilders and a half, of one guilder, and of half a guilder (these coins are the same as those in the Netherlands); besides silver coins of f.0·25, and f.0·10, bearing Malay and Javanese inscriptions; nickel coins of f.0·05, and copper coins of f.0·025 (2½ cent), f.0·01 (one cent), and f.0·005 (½ cent). The issue of bank-notes is a monopoly of the Java Bank. The convertibility of the bank-notes into gold which has been practically suspended since the beginning of the war was restored by the declaration of the Government and the Java Bank in May 1925.

Education

The educational system distinguishes two kinds of instruction: (I.) Instruction given in the Dutch language; (II.) Instruction given in a vernacular language. To the first category belong 772 (268 private) elementary schools, amongst which are 367 specially for natives and 109 for Chinese. Furthermore, there are 69 (33 private) intermediate schools; 14 public and 6 private secondary schools, which find their continuation in the universities in Holland and in the institutions for higher education in the Dutch East Indies—the college of technical science at Bandoeng and the colleges of law and medicine at Batavia, the certificates of which colleges are equal to those issued by the universities in Holland; 6 private secondary schools for girls, and 66 private Fröbel schools. In addition, the following professional schools fall within the same category: 2 schools of medicine, 1 training school for civil-service officers, 3 schools for native officials, 3 agricultural schools, 1 school of veterinary medicine, 5 (1 private) commercial schools, 6 (2 private) technical schools for architecture, mechanical electro-technical and mining engineering, 2 trade schools, 18 (12 private) training schools and some courses for higher qualifications, supplying European teachers for the elementary schools and a number of the intermediate schools. For Chinese teachers there is a school with instruction in the Dutch language, for native teachers there are 12 (5 private). Furthermore, there are 1 school for post and telegraph officials, 1 school for chemist-assistants, 1 course for analysts, 1 school for chief mates and naval engineers, 11 (7 private) schools for occupations for women. In category II. there are about 20,400 (private) elementary schools with 1,785,000 pupils, besides a number of trade schools and agricultural schools and a marine-school for the Navy at Macassar. Furthermore, there are 20 public and 13 private normal schools and 280 elementary courses for training native teachers in vernacular language. The other schools are Mohammedan religious schools (18,000 with 450,000 pupils) and a number of schools for Chinese and for Arabs (with 50,000 pupils).

Trade

Tandjoeng Pinang and Sabang are free ports. The other ports are open for either general trade or only for native coasting navigation. Godowns where goods can be stored and sold, and from whence they can be exported without payment of import or export duties, are established at Batavia, Cheribon, Semarang, Sourabaya, Padang, Palembang, Belawàn, Manado, Gorontalo, Ternate, Amboina, Neira (Bandaneira), Macassar and Koepang.

Import duties are imposed in the whole of Netherlands-India, except the Island Wē (Sabang) (Government Atjeh and Dependencies), and the isles belonging to the Residency Riouw and Dependencies. The import duty is fixed ad valorem or according to the weight or the quantity dimensions, most of the goods being separately mentioned in the tariff. Most of the metals and raw materials, as lime and wood, and articles of art and science are free of import duty. Export duty is only paid on a few articles according to value or quantity. Transit cargo is free.

An excise is charged on kerosene-oil, gasoline and benzine, on matches of all kinds, on cigars, cigarettes and cut tobacco (except inland cut tobacco) and on inland beer; moreover on inland arrack in Java and Madoera.

Principal Harbours

Island of Java

Tandjong Priok.—The old harbour of Batavia, which is situated on the north of the Tji Liwoeng serves only for prahus and lighters. In the year 1877 new harbour works were constructed for ocean going vessels at Tandjong Priok, 9 kilometres eastward from the old harbour. Those works consist of an outer harbour comprising a water area of about 1,400,000 sq. metres, formed by two moles of dumped stone built out into the sea and having a length of 1,700 metres each. The harbour gives accommodation for mooring on buoys, with an area of about 850,000 square metres for ships with a draught of 9 metres and is in open connection with three inner harbour basins. The first inner harbour basin is 1,100 metres long and 185 metres wide. Along the western side seven large storage godowns have been built, on a quay of 1,000 metres length. Along the eastern side is a quay of 125 metres length with one godown, north of this quay a new quay of 200 metres will be built, the rest being provided with screw pile jetties, with a total length of nearly 300 metres which serve for coal, tin and salt. The quays give accommodation to ships with a draught of 8 metres. The second inner basin wide 150 metres has a length of 1,000 metres and is on both sides provided with a quay wall of a length of 1,000 metres. Six large godowns are erected on the western side and two godowns and one open shed on the eastern side. The quay walls of the second basin give accommodation to ships with a draught of 9 (about 1,700 metres) and for the rest of 9.50 metres. On the Westside of the third basin is made a quay of 500 meters. In the land-tongue, broad 300 metres, between the first and second inner harbour basin a canal for lighters with a draught of 2.20 metres has been made. In the land-tongue on the west side of the first inner basin are two harbours for lighters with a total area of 24,000 square metres, where also joins a canal for lighters leading to the old harbour and the town of Batavia. In the northern part of this land-tongue is another small basin. A large part of this basin and the land adjoining it is let to the Tandjong Priok Drydock Company, which installed repairing yards, a 8,000 and 4,000 tons floating dock and a patent slip with 2,000 tons lifting power. Eastward from the third harbour are situated two oil-establishments, viz.: one of the B.P.M. (Royal Dutch) and one of the Socony. They connect with the sea by canals and by pipe-lines, and also with the oil-wharf at the end of the second harbour so that liquid may be obtained at different quays as well as at the wharf. A harbour for fishermen's boats (area 200,000 square metres) is situated east of the third basin. The originally lowlying marshy land surrounding the harbour has been reclaimed. The harbour is equipped with 36 electric-cranes with a lifting capacity of 3.5 to 10 tons, a floating motor-crane with a lifting capacity of 75 tons and a floating derrick of 15 tons. Floating bunker cranes and electric coal transporters have been installed by the Nederlandsch Indische Steenkolen Handel Maatschappij. Every point of any importance is connected with the railway-system of the harbour. At the end of 1932 altogether a sum of about Fls. 55,000,000 had been devoted to the construction of the Tandjong Priok harbour, apart from the costs of the railway connections to Batavia.

Soerabaja.—The harbour of Soerabaja originally consisted only of the river Kali Mas and its boards. This river has been abroaded and is now used as a harbour for lighters to which purpose quays are built on both sides. On the mouth, a spit of land has been reclaimed on the western board of the lengthened bank of the Kali Mas, which is accommodated with a quay wall of 370 metres length and gives accommodation to small ocean going steamers. A pier, broad 200 metres (the North-pier) has been built in the sea from the seaside of this land-tongue, to the west and roughly parallel with the coast line. Its front coincides approximately with the natural channel and has a length of 1,200 metres, it gives accommodation to ships with a draught of up to 9 metres. The head of the pier consists of a quay with a length of 200 metres where ships with a draught of 9 metres can berth. Behind the North-pier a big harbour basin in the form of a square with sides of 900 metres has been dredged. Along the southern quay wall of the North-pier (800 metres in length) the basin has for a breadth of 250 metres a depth of 9 metres under low tide. On the east side the basin is provided with a quay of 160 metres. Adjoining to this quay have been installed three floating docks of 1,400, 3,500 and 14,000 tons capacity. On the west side of the basin a quay has been built with a length of 920 metres (giving berthing accommodation for ships with a draught of up to 10 metres); the southern 400 metres are used for a big coaling plant. Parallel to this coal wharf and at a distance of 160 metres a new pier (the Holland-pier) with a length of 750, a front of 140 and a base of 160 metres, has in the recent years been constructed. It gives berthing accommodation for ships with a draught of 10 metres on the sides and on the head. The remaining part of the basin is provisionally intended for the use of lighters, which can moor alongside a quay on the south side of the basin. The vast marshy land surrounding the harbour has been reclaimed. The harbour equipment includes two floating steam-cranes with a lifting capacity of 25 and 50 tons respectively; on the quays there are 22 electric cranes from one to ten tons each. At the end of the year 1932 altogether a sum of about Fls. 78,000,000 had been devoted to the Soerabaja harbour, apart from the costs of the railway connections.

Semarang.—When the old harbour works, dating from the year 1878 proved to be insufficient a few years ago a spacious lighter harbour was adjoined, consisting of two basins and a small harbour for fishing boats. The total water area is 185,000 square metres, the berthing length available for lighters is 4,000 metres. The wharves are equipped with sheds, one steam-crane of 25 tons, and about 20 electrically driven cranes, one of which has a lifting capacity of 10 tons, the others of 1½ to 3 and 2½ to 5 tons. At the end of the year 1932 a sum of about Fls. 13,000,000 had been devoted to the construction of the Semarang harbour, apart from the costs of the railway connections, which lead to every point of any importance in the harbour.

Tjilatjap.—Tjilatjap, the only harbour of importance on the south coast of Java, is situated on a tongue of land, bounded on the east by the Indian Ocean and on the west by the river Donan, in the estuary of which there is sufficient depth of water (8 metres at low tide) for large steamers. Owing to the protection provided by the island of Noesa Kembangan, lying off the coast here, this estuary offers a safe anchorage, where the breakers of the Indian Ocean are not felt. There is 520 metres of pier and ships drawing 8 metres are able to berth alongside the northern part of the pier even at low tide. At the end of the year 1932 altogether a sum of about Fls. 2,500,000 has been devoted to the Tjilatjap harbour apart from the costs of the railway connections.

Cheribon.—The harbour, consisting of two basins and a harbour canal has a total water area of 87,000 square metres. An average depth of fairway, of 3 metres below low tide is maintained by dredging. A quay length of 700 metres is available for lighters, which carry out the loading and discharging of vessels anchoring at the well protected roadstead. The wharves are provided with cranes and sheds.

Tegal.—The harbour with two basins has a total water area of 83,000 square metres, including the harbour canal. A length of quay of 800 metres is available for discharging lighters. The wharves are provided with cranes and sheds.

Island of Sumatra

Belawan, the most important harbour of Sumatra—the land of Sumatra tobacco, tea and rubber—is situated on the Island Belawan, at the estuary of the Deli and Belawan rivers. The harbour consists of wharves on the west side of the island (along which lighters having a water area of 27,500 square metres, and wharves on the north side of the island. The wharves have a total length of ,2000 metres; 300 metres do not belong to the government but to private owners and 980 metres are formed by a newly built quay on the northern side for vessels with a draught of about 10 metres. The wharves are provided with sheds those on the new quay of a large type. The harbour equipment includes one floating steam-crane with a lifting capacity of 50 tons while on the quay have been erected 5 electric cranes of 3 to 10 tons. The depth of the channel at the mouth of the Belawan-river has already been increased by suction dredging to more than 8 metres at low tide. At the end of the year 1932 altogether a sum of about Fls. 26,000,000 had been devoted to the Belawan-harbour apart from the cost of the railway connections, which are reaching to every point of any importance.

Emmahaven.—This harbour is the chief port of the West Coast of Sumatra and is situated in the north-western part of the Koninginne-bay, which is formed by the tongues of land projecting into the sea in a south-western and southern direction. The harbour basin is enclosed between two breakwaters, with a length of 260 and 900 metres respectively, and the northern shore of the bay. The depth is 9 metres at low tide. Four screw pile wharves, the length of which is 120, 108, 108 and 96 metres, give berthing accomodation to four ocean steamers. Six large sheds have been built behind the jetties. The most important export consists of Ombilin coals from Sumatra. The colliers moor at a special jetty where a coaling tip fills them at the rate of 300 tons an hour. At the end of the year 1932 altogether a sum of about Fls. 5,000,000 had been devoted to the Emmahaven harbour, apart from the costs of the railway connections. On the eastside of the coaling tip will be built a jetty with a length of 192 metres alongside which ships of 9 metres draught can moor.

Sabang.—The harbour of Sabang is in a spacious bay, accessible from the west, in the island of Poelo Weh, situated a little over 50 kilometres to the north of Koetaradja, the capital of the province of Atjeh. The harbour serves principally as a coaling-station and is equipped for this purpose with modern accommodation. In the north-western part of the bay are the coal wharves with a total length of 590 metres, alongside which ships of 9 metres draught can moor for loading and discharging coal. To the south-west of the coal wharves lies one 5,000 tons floating dock, while adjoining to the dock is a quay specially intended for ships requiring repairs. In the northern part of the bay is a general commercial wharf, 200 metres long with the requisite storage godowns adjacent.

Oosthaven.—Oosthaven, which is situated in the Lampong-bay on the south coast of Sumatra is the beginning point of the railway to Palembang. A quay with a length of 170 metres and equipped with a large shed (100 × 40 square metres) has been built for ocean going vessels with a draught of 9 metres. Along the southside of the inner harbour is a jetty with a length of 80 metres along which ships of 9 metres draught can moor

Palembang.—Palembang, which is situated on the Moesi-river, 90 kilometres from its mouth in the Bangka Straits, is a tidal harbour; larger ships can only cross the bar at the mouth of the river, where the depth at high water amounts to 6.3 metres, at flood-tide. In the harbour is a screw pile jetty with a length of 250 metres equipped with a hand-crane of 6 tons. When there is no room available for ships at the wharf, they remain at anchor in the river and can load and discharge on both sides by means of lighters.

Island of Celebes

Makasser.—Makasser, the most important harbour in the eastern part of the Archipelago is situated on the south-west point of Celebes. It possesses a road well protected by several coral islands and two breakwaters, approximately parallel with wharves at the shore, at a distance of about 1,200 metres. The wharves consist of a quay-wall with a length of 1,340 metres where ships of 9 metres draught can moor even at low tide and a screw pile wharf, 500 metres long and 10 metres broad, with a depth alongside of 7.50 metres at low tide. A harbour for sailing boats and native vessels with an area of 20,000 square metres and 26 little screw pile jetties has been made. The harbour is equipped with sheds; liquid fuel and coal can be obtained. At the end of the year 1932 altogether a sum of Fls. 14,000,000 had been devoted to the construction of the Makasser harbour works apart from the costs of the railway connections.

Island of Borneo

Pontianak.—Pontianak, which is situated at the Kapoeas river, is the principal trading centre of the West Coast of Borneo. There is a wharf nearly 300 metres long behind which sheds are built.

Bandjermasin.—Bandjermasin is situated near the South Coast of Borneo on the Martapoerariver, a few kilometres above the junction of that river with the Barito river. The accommodation exists of a screw pile wharf with a length of 150 metres and sheds behind it.

Civil Aviation

The civil airlines, which are run by the Royal Netherlands Indian Airlines Company (K.N.I.L.M.) form an important and valuable supplement to the other means of transport. The following lines are now in regular exploitation:

Batavia-Sydney, vice-versa; twice weekly; this service provides a through connection with the Koninklijke Luchtvaart Maatschappij service from Batavia to Amsterdam.

Batavia-Saigon, vice-versa; weekly

Batavia-Bandoeng vice-versa; twice or thrice daily according to season (70 miles)

Batavia-Samarang-Surabaya, vice-versa; once or twice daily (420 miles).

Batavia-Palembang-Singapore, vice-versa; weekly (700 miles).

Batavia-Palembang-Pakanbaru-Medan, vice-versa; weekly (1, 080 miles).

Batavia-Surabaya-Bandjermasin-Balikpapan, vice-versa; twice weekly (585 miles) with weekly extension to Tarakan (363 miles) from Balikpapan.

Surabaya-Den Pasar (Bali), vice-versa; twice weekly (237 miles).

Surabaya-Macassar, vice-versa; weekly (500 miles). Besides operating airlines the K. N. I. L. M. engages in aerial cartography and photography; also taxi-flying, joy-riding, etc.

Douglas, three-engined Fokkers and De Havilland Dragon Rapide machines are used, while several Lockheed Super Electras operate the Australian route.

The K. L. M. (Royal Dutch Airlines) maintain a thrice-weekly service between Amsterdam (Holland) and Batavia. The planes leave Batavia on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, covering a distance of about 9,000 miles in 5½ days.

The Empire Flying Boats carrying the all-up air mail provide a thrice-weekly service between Sydney and Southampton, the Singapore-Sydney section being operated by Qantas Empire Airways in conjunction with Imperial Airways. These Short Flying Boats have aroused considerable interest in the Netherlands East Indies by their size and comfort and the inter-continental traffic is rapidly increasing.

Since the outbreak of war in September, 1939, air communications have necessarily had to be modified. Qantas Empire Airways have succeeded in maintaining a twice weekly service on the Sydney-Singapore section of the Australia-England Empire air route. The K. N. I. L. M. have been able to maintain their internal air services, but the K. L. M. have experienced difficulty in maintaining a modified service to Europe. The present terminus is at Naples whence passengers proceed by rail to Holland.

BATAVIA

Batavia, the seat of the Government of the Netherlands Indies and the capital of the provincie West Java, is situated in 106° 48′ E. longitude and 6° 7′ S. latitude. The old city is built in the ancient Dutch style and was till the beginning of the 19th century surrounded by fortifications, which have since been demolished. It was formerly considered unhealthy. In 1699 the unfavourable conditions were greatly increased by an eruption of Mount Salak, masses of mud and sand being washed up by the river Tjiliwong, so that drainage became very difficult for a time. For this reason it became the habit for but few Europeans to remain day and night in the old city. The fine large houses are employed for offices and godowns, and in the afternoon, when business is finished, most of the Europeans retire to the new town, which is situated south of the old city and built in modern style. Broad roads and spacious squares and pleasant villas surrounded by gardens form there a desirable place. It was Marshal Daendels who, in the first years of the last century, began to embellish the new town by the construction of barracks and the palace that was designed to be the residence of the Governor-General, but has never been used for that purpose. It is now utilised for Government offices and it is situated on the east side of the Waterloo Square, where are monuments celebrating the allied victory at the battle of Waterloo to General Michiels who fell in Bali, and to Jan Pieterszoon Coen, the founder of the city, which latter was unveiled when Batavia celebrated its 250th anniversary. On the left and right of the palace are the Supreme Court and the Military Club Concordia. At a short distance from the Waterlooplein is another larger square, the Koningsplein, each side of which is one kilometre long. It is surrounded by large houses occupied by consulates, clubs, the Ethnological Museum, the Commercial Museum, the School of Law of the University, many hotels and private residences, shops and office buildings, the Natural Historical Society, the Municipal Buildings, the Willem's Church, large private schools, the Weltevreden railway station. To the north is the town Palace of the Governor-General, the central telephone office, sports grounds and a Cinema. In other parts of the new city are the Medical School of the University, six well equipped modern hospitals and two maternity homes, many Government Department Headquarters, large hotels, four swimming baths, many sports grounds, a golf course and numerous other attractions. Batavia is a thoroughly modern, up-to-date city.

The old city and the new are connected by railways, tramways and wide roads. Several Banks and Banking Corporations have offices at Batavia, including the Netherlands Trading Society (Nederlandsche Handel Maatschappij), Netherlands-Indian Commercial Bank (Nederlandsch Indische Handelsbank), and the Netherlands-Indian Discount Company (Nederlandsch Indische Escompto Mij.). There are also agencies of the Hongkong & Shanghai Banking Corporation, of the Chartered Bank of India, Australia & China, of the International Banking Corporation, of the Taiwan Bank, Ltd. and the Yokohama Specie Bank.

The population of Greater Batavia consisted on October 7th, 1930, of 37,278 Europeans, 78,965 Chinese, 7,478 non-indigenous Orientals and 411,049 natives; total 534,770.

BUITENZORG

The usual residence of the Governor-General is at Buitenzorg, at a distance of nearly one hour by railway from Batavia. The botanical gardens near the palace of the Governor-General were made in 1817, and are well known not only for their beautiful arrangement, but especially for the great services rendered to science and agriculture under the management of the eminent directors, Teysmann, Dr. Scheffer, and Prof. Dr. Treub. All experiments for the introduction of exotic plants nto Netherlands-India are made here, with the result that many useful plants from foreign countries are reared and flourish in Java as in their native soil

SOURABAYA

Sourabaya is the capital of the "Provincie" Oost-Java, in the island of Java, and is advantageously situated for commercial purposes on the Madura Strait, directly opposite the island of Madura. The second largest city on the island, it is the principal centre of Java's commercial activities. It is also the naval headquarters of Netherlands India. Among its principal buildings are fine Government and municipal offices, a naval arsenal, several shipbuilding yards and a naval flying-base.

Sourabaya's position is naturally protected and it lies on the low alluvial delta of the Kali Mas river which empties into the Madura strait. This strait is the narrow division between the island of Java and that of Madura. Sourabaya, therefore, is the outlet in a trade way for exceptionally rich districts. It has been pointed out elsewhere that Java is naturally divided into three producing districts, each of which, while yielding much the same products, yields a different grade. This is due to climate as well as to soil. Much of the soil of Java is of volcanic origin and therefore exceedingly rich in deposits of a nutritive value. The eastern portion of the island, of which Sourabaya is the seaport proper, contains about 2,000 square miles of agricultural land, most of which has been under cultivation for many years. About 71 per cent. of the population is agricultural. Among the foreigners the Chinese play an important part. In 1938 there were 31,205 Europeans, 50,855 foreign Orientals, 294,000 natives; total 382,560.

The climate is typically tropical there being only three-quarter of an hour's difference between the longest and the shortest day. The climate, however, shows one marked difference from that of other tropical regions for the influence of the sea and mountain-breezes moderates the heat during the day and prevents too fast cooling-off at night. The pressure is constant with a mean temperature of 80 F. maximum 95° F. and a rainfall of 130 inches. The wet season covers the period from December to May, the dry one from June to November.

Sourabaya is extremely fortunate in point of shipping, thanks largely to its geographical position. Besides a modern, well equipped harbour, Sourabaya is provided with an excellent and safe roadstead. The entrance to the roads is 1,500 feet in width at the west, and the depth of water at low tide is 22 feet. At the East entrance, which widens to the open sea, the depth is about 16 feet and in the roads about 42 feet. The harbour has approximately 5,500 yards of quay and is fully equipped with electric cranes, dry-docks, and other loading and coating facilities. It lies about three miles from the centre of the town, to which it is linked by rail, road and water.

SEMARANG

Semarang, the capital of the "Provincie" Midden Java is situated in 110° 25′ E. Longtitude and 6° L. Latitude. The population of Semarang numbered in 1937 13,111 Europeans, 27,566 Chinese, 2,133 Foreign Orientals and 187,663 Natives; total 230,473. The city may be divided in two parts, the old part situated near the coast consisting principally of a native population, and a district a little higher up inhabited mostly by Europeans, whilst there is also an attractive suburb called Tjandi situated on the hills about 500 feet above sea level, which lies some two miles to the South of the town. Situated in Bodjong which is the main street running through the town are the Courts of Justice, various Government Offices and the principal European shops.

The port of Semarang is an open roadstead, but as fine weather usually prevails, loading is only interrupted on a very few days in the year.

Railway facilities are good and extend to Sourabaya, Batavia and Soerakarta from whence they link up with the main line through the Island. There are also light railways to the up country districts; whilst the main motor roads are remarkably good. Semarang also possesses an up-to-date aerodrome.

PADANG

Padang, the capital of the West Coast of Sumatra, is situated 100 deg. 30 min. 30 sec. E. longitude and 59 min. 30 sec. S. latitude. The population, numbered 51,976 of whom 2,624 (1,313 males, 1,309 female) Europeans, 40,694 (23,084 male, 17,610 female) Natives, 7,212 (3,945 male, 3,529 female) Chinese, 1,456 (753 male, 703 female) other foreign Orientals according to Census, 7th of October, 1930. Padang has a splendid natural harbour, the "Emmahaven," with up-to-date wharfage facilities. The place is an important market for Import and Export articles. The produce of the West Coast, such as coffee, copra, cassia-vera, rattan, gum damar, rubber, hides, nutmegs, mace, cloves, etc., are shipped to the different ports of the world. The beautiful highlands, with the centre Fort de Kock, offer plenty of opportunities for walking and motoring trips amidst most gorgeous scenery. Padang is one of the healthiest places on the Coast, land and sea breezes contributing materially to lower the temperature. Owing to the absence of monsoons no division of the year into a dry and a wet season can be made, the rainfall being more or less equally divided over the whole year. However June and July are considered to be the dry period.

Padang is now linked up with Medan-Deli on the North East coast by an excellent motor road which passes through a great variety of primeval and beautiful scenery. Comfortable hotels and rest houses are distributed along this 850 kilometer length of road, so that the journey is warranted free from hardship.

Within short, Padang will be an aerial port so that tourists will be enabled to enjoy a birds-eye view of this richly verdured tropical island. Padang has two good hotels and a Rotary Club.

Padang and Fort de Kock are each equipped with a golf course. Especially attractive is the one in the cool climate of Fort de Kock, laid out in a romantic miniature sort of Wild West canyon with a rushing stream running through its length about 40 feet below the greater part of the course, and a lovely view, through one end of the canyon, of the volcano "Merapi" about 10 Miles away.

MACASSAR

Macassar, the capital of the "gouvernement" Celebes and Dependencies, is situated 119° 24′ E. longitude and 5° 8′ S. latitude. The population numbered in the end of 1938 about 87,655, of whom 4,119 were Europeans, 58,556 natives, 180 Japanese, 24,050 Chinese and 750 other nationalities. These figures do not include the floating population of native coolies working in the docks.

As the principal centre of trade in the north-eastern part of the Archipelago, the place has great importance as a transit port. There is an old wharf 510 metres long (the Wilhelminakade), with custom-houses and godowns for general use and a new concrete quay about 1,400 metres in length (the Julianakade), where the steamship companies have their own waterfront, godowns and offices. The Southern end of the waterfront is connected by a highway, several kilometres long, with the business quarters and warehouses. A breakwater 2,700 metres long protects the harbour from rough seas. Macassar has been closed as a free port since August, 1906. The town is nicely built. A fine thoroughfare, lined with tamarind trees, traverses the principal part, where the Government House and other public buildings are situated, and leads on both sides to large grass-covered squares—the Koningsplein and Kerkplein. A business centre consists of Passar Street, Wilhelminakade and Julianakade. The pleasantest living quarters are General van Daalen weg and Hospitaalweg, where houses with colonnades give the impression of a town in southern Europe. Around the European settlement the natives have made their villages. The surrounding country is low and marshy, covered with rice-fields and kampongs. The mountains, with the Peak of Bonthain in the distance, afford a fine spectacle, especially in the evening, when they are not covered by the fogs that rise from the plains. Beautiful sunsets are to be seen every night from the Harbourmaster's landing-stage.

Points of interests are the old forts "Rotterdam" and "Vredenburg", both erected in the times of the Netherland East Indian Company (17th Century), the new Governor's House, the Townhall and the "Kerkplein" with a monument.

The city of Macassar is administered by a Municipal Council with a Burgomaster as president. The Council has 17 members (10 of European origin, 5 Natives of Macassar, and 2 Chinese). Technical affairs, grounds and the public sanitary service are managed, under the supervision of the Municipal Council, by a Director of Municipal Public Works (Directeur Gemeente Werken). The gas plant is the property of the Nederlandsch Indische Gas Maatschappij, which also controls the electric plant.

The harbour (Government property) has been constructed at a cost of about twelve million guilders (£1,300,000) and is administered by a Harbour Board (Commissie van Bijstand) with the Engineer Harbour-Director (Directeur der Haven) as President, under the supervision of the Department of Public Works at Batavia. Marine and shipping affairs are managed in collaboration with the Harbourmaster, and pilots are compulsory.

EAST COAST OF SUMATRA

The district known as the East Coast of the Island of Sumatra is situated between the Government of Acheen and its Dependencies in the north, the Straits of Malacca in the east, Indragiri (a part of the Residency of Riouw and its Dependencies) in the south, and the Residency of Sumatra's West Coast and of Tapanoeli in the west. The administrative formation of one province for the whole of Sumatra took effect as from July 1st 1938, the highest administrative authority now being the Governor of Sumatra. Local affairs however in the East Coast of Sumatra are in effect controlled by the Resident of the East Coast of Sumatra, who has under him 7 Assistant Residents, 19 Controllers (inc. Gezaghebbers) and 7 Assistant - Controllers. The East Coast of Sumatra includes a number of States, each of which, under control of the Government, is ruled by a body known as the "Inlandsche Zelfbestuur", consisting of the Sultan and his "Rijkgrooten." Justice is dispensed by the Court of Justice at Medan, the Landraad of Medan, Bindjei, Tandjung Balei, Tebing Tinggi and Bengkalis, the Residentiegerechten of Medan, Bindjei, Tandjoeng Balei and Bengkalis, the Magistrates, the Landgerechten, and by native Courts or "Karapatan." The staple industry of the country is agriculture, and, this being dependent upon imported labour (mostly Javanese), the labour question is carefully guarded by a special ordinances. The employer must house his people properly, provide them with medical attendance and food when sick, and daily or monthly payments are compulsory. The question of indentured labour has received great attention in the recent past, resulting in a new Coolie Ordinance which calls for a progressive decline in the proportion of contract coolies to the total labour force employed by estates. At the end of 1937, 95.98% of the labour was free.

The East Coast of Sumatra has an area of 36,101 square miles and a population, according to the 1930 census, of 1,693,200, which includes 11,079 Europeans, 192,822 Chinese, 18,904 other foreign orientals (mostly British Indian) and 1,470,395 natives; Atjeh and Dependencies an area of 21,448 square miles and a population of 1,002,000.

The European taxable population is estimated at 25 per cent. less than in 1930, and the labour force on estates at 210,034 coolies, whereas it was formerly as high as 320,000. The retrograde movement however has ceased and more coolies are being brought from Java than are being sent back. It is of interest to record that the gradual abolition of the penal clauses in the agreements of indentured labourers has worked smoothly, and free labourers now amount to more than 95 per cent. of the total force. Estates are no longer reducing their European staffs, and in some cases young assistants are being brought out from Europe.

The supremacy of the Dutch Government is based upon political treaties with each of the Princes, in whose hands is left the jurisdiction over their own subjects except so far as relates to the infliction of the death penalty and banishment, and the disposal of land or landed property. Land contracts with Europeans, while made between the ruling prince and the concessionaire, are subject to the approval of the Governor. Mining contracts require the approval of the Governor-General of the Netherland-Indies. In all the States the Dutch Government has bought the right to collect the customs duties and the ordinary revenues. Land revenue, collected by Government officials, is at the disposal of the native rulers and his chiefs. The best known of the States is Deli, where tobacco planting was first introduced, and by which name the whole of the East Coast province is sometimes designated. Deli, Langkat, Serdang and other tobacco-growing districts, are celebrated throughout the world for their fine silky tobacco leaf, which is specially suited for the outside wrappers of cigars, being at once light in weight and elastic and strong in texture. Next to tobacco, the cultivation of rubber (Hevea Brasiliensis) was developed though it has been considerably restricted in recent years. There are also important plantations of tea, palm-oil and hemp.

Very important, also, is the export of fish from Bagan Si Api Api—to Singapore and Java. There is also a considerable export of timber from the islands near Bengkalis to Singapore. The production of paddy, though considerable, falls short of the demand by many thousand bags, which are mostly imported from British India and the Straits Settlements. An important oil industry exists in the north of the district of Pangkalan Brandan. The production is in the hands of the Bataafsche Petroleum Maatschappij. Almost all necessaries of life have to be imported, and a brisk trade between Java, the Straits Settlements, Europe and the East Coast is the consequence.

Medan (Deli), the Capital of Sumatra, and the residence of the principal civil and military officials, is a pleasant little town, laid out in modernstyle, and administered by a Municipality. It is well provided with schools and hospitals. In the town five European banking corporations—the Java Bank, the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China, the Nederlandsche Handel Maatschappij, the Nederlandsch-Indische Handelsbank, the Nederlandsch-Indisch Escompto Maatschappij—have their branches, and there is also one Chinese bank. There are two hotels (Hotel de Boer and Grand Hotel), a Social Club (Witte Societeit), Deli Yacht Club, Racing, Golf and Tennis clubs; also numerous houses of business, Chinese, Japanese, Indian, Malay, Bombay and Tamil shops, etc. Medan is a regular port of call on the K. L. M. air route Amsterdam-Batavia.

The port of Belawan Deli, at the mouth of the Belawan River, is in communication with Medan by road and railway, the lines of which extend a long distance up country, giving also communication via Tandjoeng Poera and Pangkalan Brandan with Koeta Radja (Atcheen) and to the south via Tebing Tinggi, with Tandjoeng Balei (Asahan), Koeta Penang and, via Pematang Siantar, to the west with Sibolga, Fort de Kock, Padang, Korintji. Improvements and extensions to the road system are being carried out by degrees. Other important ports are those of Pangkalan Brandan, Tandjoeng Poera, Tandjoeng Balei, Bengkalis, Bagan Si Api Api and Laboean Bilik and Pakanbaroe. There are Wireless Stations at Medan, Bengkalis and Bagan Si Api-Api. Brastagi and Prapat, the former nearly 5,000 feet above the sea level and the latter on the shores of the Toba Lake are popular holiday resorts with modern hotels where golf bathing and riding may be enjoyed.

THE PHILIPPINES

Named in Honour of Philip II, King of Spain.

The Philippines has been picturesquely described as "a magnificent rosary of glowing islands that nature has hung about the heaving bosom of the warm Pacific." The archipelago is bounded on the north and west by the China Sea, on the east by the Pacific Ocean, and on the south by the Celebes and Sulu Seas. The land area is 114,400 square miles, while the land and sea area embraced within the treaty boundaries is 833,000 square miles, which is greater than the land and water area of Great Britain and Ireland. The Philippines extends from North to South between 5 and 22 North Latitude, and from East to West between 117 and 127 East Longitude, or approximately 1200 miles from North to South, and 700 miles from East to West.

Area and Population

The total area of the Philippines is 114,400 square miles. This is larger than that of the states of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware put together.

The Philippine Archipelago is composed of 7,083 islands, of which 2,441 are named and 4,642 are not. There are 11 important islands, each of which has an area of more than 1,000 square miles. Luzon has an area of 40,814 square miles; Mindanao 38,012; Samar, 5,124; Negros, 4,903; Palawan, 4,500; Panay, 4,448; Mindoro, 3,794; Leyte 2,799; Cebu, 1,695; Bohol, 1,534; and Masbate, 1,255.

The Archipelago is divided into three great groups of islands designated as Luzon, the Visayas, and Mindanao. Luzon includes the provinces of Abra, Albay, Bataan, Batangas, Bulacan, Cagayan, Camarines Norte, Camarines Sur, Cavite, Ilocos Norte, Ilocos Sur, Isabela, Laguna, La Union, Mountain Province, Nueva Ecija, Nueva Vizcaya, Pampanga, Pangasinan, Rizal, Sorsogon, Tarlac, Tayabas and Zambales, and the island-provinces of Batanes, Marinduque, Masbate and Mindoro. The second group, the Visayas, is made up of the provinces of Antique, Capiz and Iloilo, on the island of Panay; Occidental Negros and Oriental Negros, on the island of Negros; and the individual island-provinces of Bohol, Cebu, Leyte, Romblon, Samar and Palawan. The third group, Mindanao, is made up of the provinces of Agusan, Bukidnon, Cotabato, Davao, Lanao, Oriental Misamis, Occidental Misamis, Surigao, Zamboanga, and a cluster of islands forming the province of Sulu.

According to the Philippine Census in 1918 the population was 10,314,310, but by 1937 the total was 13,601,290 including about 525 British subjects, 6,632 Americans, 4,236 Spaniards, 83,993 Chinese, 17,911 Japanese and 2,774 other foreign nationals. The Filipinos are chiefly of Malay race and 12,149,358 are Christians (mainly Roman Catholics). According to the Census of January 1st, 1939, the population was 15,984,247.

About half the remainder are Mohammedans (in the south) and the other half pagans.

Physical Features and Climate

The coastline includes many fertile coastal plains. Added to these are the Central Plain, the Cagayan and Bicol Valleys of Luzon; the Central Plain of Panay; and the Agusan and Cotabato Valleys of Mindanao. Most of the large islands are crossed by well-defined ranges, running, as a rule, in a north and south direction; Mount Apo, in south-eastern Mindanao, is the highest peak, with an altitude of 9,690 feet.

The part of the archipelago north of the islands of Mindanao and Sulu comes within the typhoon area and violent storms are of frequent occurrence during the rainy season July to September inclusive.

The climate in the lowlands is tropical, but compared with most other tropical countries it is neither unhealthful nor unpleasantly hot, even to people born in the temperate climates. At certain seasons of the year humidity in the atmosphere makes the heat trying, but the thermometer seldom registers the temperatures not uncommonly experienced in New York, Washington, or Tokyo in the height of summer. Moreover the periods of extreme heat and extreme humidity, in the Philippines, do not coincide. The hot and dry season occurs in the greater part of the country during the period March to May, while the heavy rains fall between June and September. Speaking in general the heat in most parts of the Philippines is never extreme, and sunstroke is so rare as to be almost unheard of. Due to the fact that the islands are constantly fanned by refreshing sea breezes, the nights are pleasantly cool. In the higher altitudes the climate is temperate, and at times wintry. At the mountain resort of Baguio, 150 miles north of Manila, log fires are to be found burning in the living rooms of most homesides during the greater part of the year.

The northern part of the archipelago lies within the typhoon area, and violent storms which usually have their origin in the Pacific, east of the Philippines, not infrequently sweep over the country leaving destruction in their wake. Timely warning of the approach of a typhoon is invariably published by the Weather Bureau of Manila, so that every possible precaution may be taken to prevent unnecessary loss of life and destruction of property.

The Philippines is at times subject to great seismic and volcanic activity. Of the active volcanoes, Mayon, in the province of Albay, is noteworthy because of its symmetrical shape, which is an almost perfect cone. This volcano has broken forth in destructive eruption on several occasions within recent years. During the eruption of 1900 lava flowed from its crater to the sea, a distance of nearly ten miles. In January, 1911, Taal Volcano, on a small island in the middle of Lake Taal, 40 miles south of Manila, burst forth with titanic violence, causing great loss of life and annihilating a dozen villages. Other important active volcanoes are Canlaon in Negros, Apo in Mindanao, Babuyan Claro on a small island north of Luzon, and Catarman on the island of Camiguin. This volcano made its first appearance in 1856 as a column of smoke between two rocks. In the following year it underwent violent eruption, attended by earthquakes, and by 1860 it had attained an elevation of 700 feet. In nearly all the islands of the archipelago extinct volcanoes exist.

Health

The Bureau of Health is the Government branch in charge of enforcing measures and promulgating rules and regulations for the promotion and protection of public health and for the maintenance of general sanitary conditions. Its jurisdiction extends to all the cities, towns and barrios of the Philippines. Due to its work, there has been noticeable general health improvement all over the archipelago during the past two decades and the people of the Philippines are beginning to realize the advantages of a well-organized and nation-wide system of sanitation. The old attitude of distrust towards sanitary rules in the country has disappeared; the people to-day are exerting all their energies toward promoting the gospel of clean and healthy living. Hospitals are fast increasing throughout the country, and every day they are gaining ground in the estimation of the people. In Manila, the largest and one of the most up-to-date among the hospitals is the Philippine General Hospital. There are 27 hospitals in the city of Manila and 46 in the provinces. Activities related to child welfare in general are looked after by the Bureau of Public Welfare. The Board of Pharmaceutical Examiners and Inspectors has the immediate supervision and control of all pharmacies, drug-stores, dispensaries and similar establishments, both private and public, in the Philippines

The death rate among the European and American residents of Manila is said to be lower than the death rate in New York or Chicago. This may be accounted for, however, by the fact that a majority of such residents do not establish themselves in the Philippines until they have reached adult age, and they almost invariably return to their more temperate homeland as they approach the declining years. Moreover, as a rule, only the physically fit venture to leave their own country for the purpose of carving out careers for themselves overseas. Ideal health resorts are found in the highlands, such as Baguio in the Mountain Province, (5000 feet above sea level), and the settlements in the vicinity of Lake Lanao, in Mindanao. The medicinal qualities of the waters of Sibul Springs, Los Baños, Klondyke's (on the Benguet) road, and many other hot or mineral springs, are known to be of great value.

History

In his trip around the world, Ferdinand Magellan, a Portuguese, in the service of Spain, discovered the Philippines on March 16th, 1521. Spain, claiming the country, colonized it in 1565, when Legaspi, the first Governor of the Philippines, founded the first Spanish settlement in Cebu. The city of Manila was founded on June 24th, 1571.

The early history of the Philippines is a record of continual trouble. Conflicts between the civil and ecclesiastical authorities led to internal contentions, while both Portugal and the Netherlands coveted these rich possessions and harassed the Spaniards. In 1606 the Dutch blockaded the ports with five ships, which were, however, destroyed by the Spanish fleet. Attacks were also made at different points by powerful Chinese piratical fleets. The most celebrated of these was the invasion by Li Ma Hong, who with 2,000 men landed at Manila in 1574, but was defeated and driven out by the Spaniards and natives, under the leadership of Juan de Salcedo. In 1762 the capital was taken by the English, the private property of the inhabitants being saved from plunder on the condition of the payment of a ransom of £1,000,000, half of which was paid in money and the other half in bills upon the Spanish Treasury. In the meantime, however, peace had been concluded, and the country was restored to Spain, payment of the balance of the indemnity not being insisted upon.

The Filipinos were given representation in the Spanish Cortes in 1810. The galleon trade instituted by the Spanish Government ended in 1815. The port of Manila was opened to the commerce of the world in 1830. With the opening of the Suez Canal in 1869, direct mail service with Spain was inaugurated and railroads and telegraphs were introduced into the Philippines. Attempts to throw off the Spanish yoke were made in 1822, 1841, 1842, 1872 and 1896. On June 12th, 1898, Philippine Independence was proclaimed in Cavite, and the Philippine flag was officially unfurled. Upon the outbreak of hostilities between the United States and Spain in 1898, the Insurgents offered to co-operate with the former. The offer was accepted with the result that while the Americans took and held the city of Manila, the Insurgents overthrew Spanish authority throughout the remainder of the Island of Luzon and established a government of their own with General Aguinaldo as Dictator. Commodore Dewey sank the Spanish squadron in Manila Bay on May 1st, 1898. The Philippine Republic was established on January 23rd, 1899. The Treaty of Paris, providing for the cession of the Philippines to the United States, was ratified by the Senate of the United States on February 6th, 1899. Civil government was established in the Philippines on July 4th, 1901. The first Philippine Assembly was inaugurated on October 16th, 1907. On August 29th, 1916 the Philippine Organic Act, commonly known as the Jones Law, came into force, establishing a system of government which continued until November 15th, 1935. Under this Act the Chief Executive was the Governor-General, appointed by the President of the United States and representing the sovereign power of the United States. Under him was the Vice-Governor, also appointed by the President, who, in addition to assuming the functions of the Governor-General during the latter's absence, held the appointment of Secretary of Public Instruction. There were six other executive departments, each under a Secretary. The legislative branch consisted of a Senate of 24 members and a House of Representatives of 93 members, mostly elected by popular franchise. From the time of the enactment of the Jones Law there was a progressive increase of Filipino participation in the administration, so that by 1935 very few American Officials remained.

Government

On March 24th, 1934 an Act of the Congress of the United States providing for the complete independence of the Philippines (commonly called the Tydings-McDuffie Act) came into force. Under this law the Philippine Legislature was authorised to arrange for the drafting of a Constitution, which, after approval by the President of the United States, was to be submitted to a plebiscite of the Filipino people. Thereafter an election of Officers of the new government was to be held, and, upon proclamation by the President of the United States, they were to take over the duties and functions of the existing government. The sovereignty of the United States was to continue until July 4th following the expiration of a period of ten years from the date of the inauguration of the new government.

A Constitutional Convention was elected and on February 8th, 1935 adopted a Constitution, which in due course was approved by the President of the United States and accepted by the people. Elections were held on September 17th, 1935, when Mr. Manuel L. Quezon was elected President, and Mr. Sergio Osmena, Vice-President of the Philippines. At the same time were chosen the 98 members of the unicameral National Assembly which was to replace the existing bicameral Legislature. The inauguration of the Commonwealth Government took place on November 15th, 1935 by proclamation of the President of the United States.

The Constitution provides for a republican form of government, and contains a Bill of Rights, setting forth certain fundamental safeguards of individual liberty, which show the influence of Anglo-Saxon ideas. Suffrage is accorded to all literate male and female citizens over 21 years of age. Legislative power is vested in a National Assembly of not more than 120 members (initially 98) to be chosen every three years, by popular election. The heads of the executive departments are not members, but they may, either upon their own initiative or upon request by the Assembly, appear before and be heard by that body, on any matter pertaining to their departments. The executive power is vested in a President, chosen by direct election for a term of six years, who may not be re-elected for the following term. He has control of all the departments of the administration and appoints their heads with the consent of the Commission on Appointments of the National Assembly. He is commander-in-chief of the armed forces and possesses the power to grant reprieves and pardons.

The judicial power is vested in a Supreme Court composed of a Chief Justice and six Associate Justices, a Court of Appeals composed of the Presiding Justice and fourteen Associate Justices and in Courts of First Instance established in the various judicial districts.

The Tydings-McDuffie Act provides that during the Commonwealth period all citizens of the Philippines shall owe allegiance to the United States and all officers of the government shall make an oath of allegiance to the United States. During the same period foreign affairs are under the direct supervision and control of the United States, and acts of the National Assembly relating to currency, coinage, imports, exports and immigration must receive the approval of the President of the United States. The President of the United States is represented by a United States High Commissioner, who has access to all government records, and may obtain from the Chief Executive of the Philippines any information which he shall request. The Act provides for the intervention of the High Commissioner in the financial affairs of the country under certain circumstances, and directs that he shall make an annual report, and any other reports which may be required, to the President and Congress of the United States. Other duties and functions may be delegated to him, in accordance with the Act, by the President of the United States. The Philippine Government is empowered to appoint a Resident Commissioner to the United States, who shall have a seat in the House of Representatives of the United States, with the right of debate but without the right of voting.

The United States may, by Presidential proclamation, exercise the right to intervene for the preservation of the Government and for its maintenance as provided in the constitution, and for the protection of life, property, and individual liberty, and for the discharge of government obligations under the constitution.

Education and Literacy

Public education in the Philippines is free, secular and co-educational, and the principal aim is to make the people socially proficient. As a means to this end, emphasis is placed upon the spread of literacy on the basis of a common language—English. The Bureau of Education maintains a complete system of public education. Public elementary and high schools are distributed throughout the Country. Insular schools for special education are maintained. The enrolment of students in the public schools is increasing every year and in 1938 was 1,734,038. Private schools, patterned after the public schools, besides the old Spanish schools and colleges which still survive, have sprung up in the Philippines in recent years. The enrolment in private school and colleges is 129,591. These schools offer primary, intermediate, secondary, collegiate, technical and vocation courses, and come under the supervision of the Department of Public Instruction. Practically all these offer instruction in English, and even the old Spanish schools and colleges have English as the medium of instruction. Upon graduating from the high schools, the students are admitted to higher institutions of learning, among which are the University of the Philippines, established and maintained by the Philippine Government, the University of Santo Tomas, the Colegio de San Juan de Letran, the National University, the University of Manila, Far Eastern University, Philippine Women's University, Centro Escolar University and Ateneo de Manila.

English and Spanish are both used as official languages and are widely spoken in the Philippines. There are six established native dialects with printed literature, namely, the Tagalog Visayan, Ilocano, Bicol, Pangasinan and Pampangan.

Not including the various dialects of the Mohammedans of Mindanao and Sulu, or of the Mountain tribes of Northern Luzon, or of various tribes of Pagans.

Tagalog, upon recommendation of the Institute of National Language, has been proclaimed by the President of the Philippines as the basis of the national language of the country, which will be officially used beginning on January 1st, 1940, together with English and Spanish.

Agriculture and Minerals

Cane Sugar is by far the most important product of the Philippines. Extensive areas of cane are under cultivation in Negros, Panay, Central Luzon, Cebu, Mindoro and Leyte, and modern mills and refineries have been established, in recent years, in these localities.

The Philippines is an agricultural country. The people depend chiefly on domestic agricultural products for their livelihood, and approximately 88 per cent of the total exports of the Country is made up of the produce of the farms. The soil is fertile to a degree, being for the most part volcanic in origin and exceedingly rich in all varieties of sedimentary deposits. The total area of cultivated lands in the Philippines at the present time is estimated at 4,262,870 hectares, or 15 per cent of the entire area of the country.

Rice is the staple food-product of the inhabitants of the Philippines. It is their most widely cultivated crop The area devoted to its cultivation is nearly two million hectares. Considerable quantities of this cereal, however, are still imported, chiefly from French Indo-China. Through the efforts of the Bureau of Plant Industry local farmers are realizing the advantages of scientific methods in rice farming. Seed selection is given due emphasis. Several irrigation systems are now completed, many more are in process of construction, and others are being projected. This is bound in the near future to do away with the ravages of droughts, which are of periodical occurrence, and at the same time make feasible the growing of two or three crops a year in the rice sections of the archipelago. The extension of cultivated areas is also receiving due attention from the Government and the local farmers.

Manila hemp, which the Philippines supplies to the world as first-class cordage material, is produced from the leaf stalks of the Abaca plant thriving extensively in the Country only. The fibre is also used for making binder twine, and from the old disintegrated Manila ropes is made the well-known and much-used Manila paper. In the Philippines, Abaca fibre is extensively used in the manufacture of cloth. In the making of baskets, slippers, mats and other articles, the fibre has been tried with excellent results. Within the last few years a very important use for the fibre has been found in the manufacture of hats.

Coconut palms are grown extensively and copra and vegetable oil constitute a considerable source of wealth. Tobacco is grown successfully in the fertile valleys especially of Cagayan river, and is exported to the United States and Spain in the form of Cigars and leaf tobacco. The best and choicest class is raised in the provinces of Cagayan and Isabela in northern Luzon.

Sugar-cane thrives very well, principally in the island of Negros. The most noteworthy feature of sugar-cane growing and sugar manufacturing is the increase in the number of sugar centrals during recent years. The extension of the cultivated area and the introduction of tractors and other farm machinery of good varieties, use of fertilizers and proper culture have largely brought about the increase in production.

Among the other crops with great agricultural possibilities are maguey, sisal, corn, coffee, rubber, kapok, cacao, cassava, peanut, vegetables and fruits. Cattle-raising as an agricultural pursuit is also very promising.

Gold continues to be the barometer of mining activities in the Philippines. Its production has been increasing annually until in 1938 the total output has reached P64,548,850.00. This production has placed the Philippines as the fourth greatest gold producing area under the United States flag. In quartz mining, the Benguet and Masbate districts have been consistent producers for a number of years. At present the Benguet district produces about 95% of the total output of gold. The three great producing mines in order of their importance are the Benguet Consolidated, the Balatoc, and the Itogon mines, all of which are located in Benguet, but about eight others are now in regular production.

Silver mining is done in the Philippines, and the production in 1937 was P1,094,435. Small quantity of platinum is also recovered in connection with placer operations.

The native furnaces of Bulacan continue to be the only source of iron production. Development of the chromite deposits in Camarines Sur and Zambales are now being pushed to the point of production. Other metallic deposits worthy of consideration are the copper of Mankayan and Suyoc; chromite of Zambales and Pangasinan; iron of Surigao and Calambayanga Island; manganese of Ilocos Norte and Masbate; and lead and zinc of Masbate and Marinduque.

Coal is being produced from Cebu, Mindanao and Batan. Two cement plants, one in Cebu and another in Binangonan, Rizal, manufacture Portland cement for export and for domestic consumption. Lime factories in Rizal, Tayabas and Iloilo produce quick and slack lime for use in sugar refineries. Exploratory drilling for petroleum is being carried out in the Bondoc peninsula and other places. Small quantity of bituminous rock of Leyte is now being mined for road construction. Guano and phosphatic rock are also being produced from the deposits of Capiz, Pangasinan, Tayabas and other provinces.

Forests

Timber forests are found in all the principal islands of the archipelago, covering an area of about 11,035,340 hectares. These forests contain some of the finest timber in the world, especially for cabinet work. Many species of the Dipterocarp family are used as substitute for mahogany and are sold in foreign markets as Philippine mahogany. Minor forest products such as rattan, oils, copal gum, tanbark, dyebark, and dyewood are abundant.

The Government owns more than 99 per cent. of all the standing timber of the Philippines, and the Bureau of Forestry has control over them. The public forests are not sold, but are developed under a license system. There are at present 118 sawmills, which are equipped with modern machinery fit to meet the big enterprise of the country.

Fisheries

Fishing, until recently an undeveloped industry in the Philippines, is rapidly coming to the front. Commercial fishing, in particular, sees a greater investment of Filipino and American capital every year.

The waters along the extensive coasts of the islands teem with common varieties of food-fishes. Among those found in commercial quantities are anchovies, sardines, silversides, mackerels, snappers, pampanos, tunas, sea-basses, mullets, milkfishes, barracudas, porgies and parrotfishes. The local market is under-supplied and considerable quantities of fish and fishery products are imported. With the more extensive use of modern fishing equipment and methods of transportation so that the interior towns can be supplied there will be a decrease in the imports of this character. The commercial canning of fish is now an established industry in the Philippines. Other sea-products found in the Philippine waters are shark fins, sponges, trepang, pearls, and pearl-shells, top-shell and widow shells.

Manufactures and Industries

The Philippines is a prospective industrial field. The country has available raw materials such as Manila hemp, copra, leaf tobacco, lumber, shells, lumbang, nuts, castor beans, clay, limestone, bamboo, buntal, dye-woods and cassava for the different lines of manufactures and industries. Manila and a few other cities are centres of these industrial activities. However, some of the big establishments such as sugar centrals, rice and lumber mills are found in localities nearest the sources of materials.

The production of coconut oil constitutes one of the principal local industries. The first modern coconut oil mill was built in 1911. The world-war gave an impetus to the industry, thereby placing coconut oil at the top of the list of Philippine exports for 1919. Sugar production, however, is now the most important industry. The first sugar central in the Philippines was established in 1910. Many other centrals and improved machinery were then installed in almost all the leading sugar sections of the country. Consequently, after 1910 a considerable increase in the sugar exports of the Philippines was noted. In 1937, 47 sugar centrals with a total daily output of over 1,014,007 tons of centrifugal sugar were in actual operation. Manila cigars and cigarettes are the output of Philippine cigar factories. Aromatic cigarettes made from Virginian leaf tobacco locally raised or imported are now manufactured in the Philippines. The rope and hemp-braid factories are yearly turning out finished products to the value of millions of pesos. Within recent years, rice milling has become a principal local industry. To-day there are more than 3,200 rice mills, with a maximum daily capacity of 348,000 cavanes, distributed throughout the archipelago.

Among the local household industries, mention may be made of weaving, embroidery and hat-making. The output of the simple native looms, which are found in practically every household in the provinces where weaving is done, increased as the industry found an ever-widening local market. The most important of these native cloths manufactured are the "sinamay" and the "abatex," both of which are made mostly from the abaca fibre, the "piña" made from the pineapple fibre, the "jusi" made from imported gummed spun silk fibres in threads mixed with mercerized cotton or the native abaca, piña and maguey fibres, and the "Abel Iloco" or Ilocano cloth manufactured in the Ilocos provinces from both native and imported cotton threads. Philippine hand-made embroideries are of cotton and linen; no silk is used. The materials chiefly used in the making of Philippine embroideries are nainsooks, batiste, voile, georgette, crepe de chine and net-cotton. These materials are imported from the United States. The principal articles of embroideries made are lingerie, children's clothes, handkerchiefs, table cloths and underwear of various classes, which are for the most part prepared according to orders received from the United States. The work done is of a very good grade and brings good prices. On account of the abundance of suitable local materials for hat-making and the excellent prices offered for Philippine hats, the manufacture of hats is a profitable industry. Philippine hats are made from native materials such as bamboo, buntal, buri, sabutan and pandan.

The other industries of the country worth mentioning include shipbuilding, foundries and machine shops, the making of shoes and slippers, desiccated cocoanut, cement, refined sugar, pearl buttons, cutch, canned pineapple, wooden and wicker furniture, soap, vegetable lard, margarine, butter, starch, paint, leather, toilet articles and other pharmaceutical preparations, matches, salt and pots, besides the aerated water and mineral water factories. Among the potential industries are paper making, gold and chromite mining, glass, perfume, alcohol distilleries and beer, wine and liquor factories, caustic soda, rug and coir mat industries.

The Labour Movement

The economic development of the Philippines has brought in its train the formation of many trade unions, organizations and mutual benefit societies intended for the protection and advancement of labour's interests and for mutual help. The first labour organization established in the Philippines was "Union Obrera Democratica" (Democratic Labour Union) on February 2nd, 1902, in the city of Manila. Subsequently, the formation of labour organizations was given greater impetus as the workers were stimulated by the success attained in dealing collectively with their employers in their demand for higher wages and better working conditions, until at the end of 1937 a total of 65 such organizations with 77 branches throughout the Philippines and a paid membership of 31,363 were in existence in the Archipelago, the majority of them being located in the city of Manila. In the Philippines there are three national labour organizations controlling the majority of trade unions and other organizations, viz., Congreso Obrero de Filipinas (Labour Congress of the Philippines), Federacion del Trabajo de Filipinas (Federation of Labour of the Philippines) and the National Confederation of Tenants and Farm Labourers of the Philippines.

Transportation and Communications

The bulk of overseas shipments are made from the port of Manila, although considerable business is handled, direct, through Cebu, Iloilo, Zamboanga, and Davao, which, with Jolo and Legaspi, are the other ports of entry. While all of the open ports have good harbours, only Manila, Cebu, Legaspi, Davao and Iloilo have wharfage for deep-draft vessels. Zamboanga can accommodate vessels drawing up to 28 feet; and Jolo has a small wharf affording the same depth. Nearly a thousand vessels are now operated in the coastwise trade.

Manila, the capital and chief port of the Philippines is on the largest bay in the Orient. The harbour at the entrance of this bay is landlocked. The anchorage space for steamers is protected by a semi-circular breakwater within which is a basin large enough to accommodate all vessels of the size of the "Empress" liners. Regular steamship lines are maintained between Manila and Hongkong, China and Japan Ports, San Francisco, Seattle, Vancouver, New York, Australian and European ports.

There are at present 1,306 kilometres of railroad car-lines in the Philippines. They are owned by two companies—the Manila Railroad Company, which is owned by the Government; and the Philippine Railway Company. In Manila and in the province of Rizal, electric car service is maintained by the Manila Electric Company, the total extent of its lines being 83 kilometres.

Next in importance to railways in the domestic transportation of the country are motor vehicles. During the year 1937, there were registered 48,654 motor vehicles of all classes. Many private individuals and companies authorized by the Public Service Commission are engaged in land transportation both for passengers and freight.

Funds for highway construction and maintenance are provided for from the following sources: a small percentage of the land tax, gasoline tax, motor vehicle tax and annual insular appropriations by the National Assembly. The first systematic programme of road construction and maintenance in different parts of the Philippines was inaugurated in 1908 by ex-Governor-General Forbes, who was then Secretary of Commerce and Police. There are today 9,882 kilometers of hard surfaced roads 5,654 kilometers of lightly surfaced roads and 2,176 kilometers of earth roads making a total of 17,712 kilometers of roads.

The construction of good roads open to all kinds of traffic in different parts of the Islands has been properly attended to by the Philippine Government during the past 20 years.

There are at present one cable line and three radio communication services in operation between the Philippines and foreign countries. Zamboanga is in radio communication with stations in North Borneo. The increased need for better and more extensive facilities for internal communication has been met by the rapid extension of telegraph and telephone lines, submarine cables, radio system and mail service.

In 1936, there were in operation 537 telegraph offices, including 100 radio stations with 499 combined telegraph-telephone offices.

The chief mail distributing centre is Manila. From this point, mails are sent to provincial post offices in Luzon by electric cars, trains and auto-busses and to the main ports in Visayas and Mindoro by steamers and air-planes. The other islands where mail train service is in operation are Cebu and Panay.

Experiments have been made recently with aviation as a factor in the mail and passenger service, both domestic and foreign. Airplanes are at present operated under regular schedules between Manila and Baguio, between Manila and Cebu via Iloilo, between Iloilo and the towns of Bacolod and La Carlota in Occidental Negros, between Manila and Paracale, and between Manila and Davao.

Banking and Coinage

Among the principal banking institutions doing business in the Philippines are the National City Bank of New York, the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, the Chartered Bank of India, Australia & China, the Yokohama Specie Bank, the Philippine National Bank, the Peoples Bank and Trust Co., the China Banking Corporation, the Bank of the Philippine Islands, the Philippine Trust Co., the Philippine Bank of Commerce, the Savings Bank of Commonwealth the Monte de Piedad and Savings Bank, and the Netherlands India Commercial Bank.

The coins used in the Philippines are of the following denominations:—Peso, one-half peso (50 centavos), peseta (20 centavos), media peseta (10 centavos), five centavos, and one centavo.

The Philippine Commission maintained this parity by passing the Gold Standard Act on October 10th, 1903. The new peso coined contains 20 grammes of silver, .800 fine; the 50 centavo piece contains 10 grammes of silver, .750 fine; 20-centavo piece, four grammes of silver, .750 fine; and the 10-centavo piece, two grammes of silver, .750 fine.

The paper money is issued in 1, 2, 5, 10, 20, 50, 100 and 500 peso denominations. The Philippine peso is equivalent to fifty cents in United States currency.

The P200 denomination of paper money now in circulation in the country was formerly issued by the Bank of the Philippine Islands, but its issuance has been discontinued.

MANILA

Manila, the capital and the largest city of the Philippines, is situated on the western side of the island of Luzon, at the mouth of the Pasig River, which practically divides it into two parts and empties into Manila Bay. The city is almost in the centre of the archipelago. It is distant two days by sea from Hongkong, four days from Nagasaki, five from Shanghai, and 17 to 28 days from San Francisco or Seattle, according to the varying speed of the different vessels on the run.

The city of Manila was founded by Legaspi on June 24th, 1571. The erection of the fortifications around the present Walled City (Intramuros) was begun about 1590. In 1645, 1863 and 1880 the city suffered considerable damage from earthquakes. The first newspaper was published in Manila in 1811. The port was opened to the commerce of the world in 1834, and the railroad line to Dagupan was completed in 1891. War having been declared between the United States and Spain, the fleet of the former on May 1st, 1898, sailed into Manila Bay and totally destroyed the Spanish fleet, practically with no loss to the attacking side. Thereafter Manila was blockaded until August 13th, when, a military force having arrived, the Americans took possession of the city.

Manila is the leading centre of foreign and domestic commerce as well as the principal port of the Country. The bulk of the imports and the exports of the country passes through this port. Foreign corporations engaged in business in the Philippines have their main offices and storehouses in Manila, whence branches are established in other local trade centres

The harbour of Manila is almost landlocked, and its deep anchorage basin is protected by a semi-circular stone breakwater. Four piers with modern cargo-handling equipment project into the harbour. The first is reserved for the use of the United States Army. The second, 600 feet long, is capable of stowing about 5,000 tons net. The third, which is 650 feet in length, has a stowing capacity of about 9,000 tons. The fourth pier has about four times the cargo capacity of the third and a berthing capacity sufficient to accommodate four of the largest type of ships at one time.

The mouth of the Pasig River is used as anchorage space for steamers and sailing vessels engaged in inter-island commerce. Here can be seen launches moving in and out, towing cascos loaded with cargoes from steamers in the bay or from the warehouses on the banks of the river. The esteros or estuaries provide additional transportation channels to different parts of the city.

Manila is the main terminal of the Manila Railroad Company, with lines from northern to southern parts of Luzon. Several provincial roads enter the city, thereby making motor vehicle transportation feasible. Electric tramways run in the principal streets of the city and its suburbs.

The population of Manila in 1937 was 399,681. Of this number, 361,676 were Filipinos, 31,213 Chinese, 1,989 Americans, 1,170 Spaniards, 2,594 Japanese, 264 British, 277 Germans, 67 French, 36 Swiss, and the rest of other nationalities. There were 28,571 people to the square mile. In 1939 Manila's population was 623,362.

The area of the city of Manila is 13.72 square miles. For all administrative and other municipal purposes the city has been divided into the following 15 districts: Tondo, San Nicolas, Binondo, Santa Cruz, Quiapo, San Miguel, Sampaloc San Lazaro, Intramuros (Walled City), The Port, Ermita, Malate, Paco, Pandacan, and Santa Ana. Tondo is inhabited by natives of the working class and is the most thoroughly Oriental. San Nicolas, Binondo, and Santa Cruz are the business districts; Intramuros, the extant example of a mediæval town; while The Port with its piers, warehouses and other shipping facilities is the commercial Manila of the future. San Miguel, Ermita and Malate are the residential districts.

The total length of the streets and roads in Manila is 545.66 kilometres. Some of these are wide and handsome avenues, of which the Luneta, Taft Avenue, Rizal Avenue, P. Burgos, Azcarraga, Isaac Peral, A. Bonifacio Drive, Katigbac Drive, and the Dewey Boulevard are the most notable. The width of the street varies from 10 to 15 metres, while that of Dewey Boulevard is 75 metres. Cassia, acacia, mabolo and other trees are found along the borders of many of the streets. The paving is mostly macadam with some asphalt, some wooden blocks and some cobbles. The Escolta in Binondo is the main business street, and in it most of the American and European stores and bazaars are found. The Rosario, another broad thoroughfare in Binondo, is occupied chiefly by Chinese shops and is a busy quarter. Rizal Avenue is a growing business centre.

Among the parks, whose total area is 1,451,917.20 square metres, are the famous Luneta, Mehan Gardens, Plaza McKinley, Harrison Park, and Burnham Green. There are monuments to Dr. José Rizal, the foremost Filipino hero and martyr, on the Luneta; to Legaspi and Urdaneta, the soldier and the priest, respectively, who implanted Spanish sovereignty in the Country, facing the north end of the Luneta; to Magallanes (Magellan), the discoverer of the Philippines, in Magallanes Landing; and to Anda at the foot of A. Bonifacio Drive, Charles IV. in Plaza McKinley, Benavides in Plaza Santo Tomas, and Queen Isabela II. in Malate.

Foremost among the hotels is the Manila Hotel. Other hotels of importance are the Luneta Hotel, Bay View Hotel and Great Eastern Hotel. Of the important buildings, mention may be made of the Ayuntamiento, the Legislative Building, the General Post Office, the Malacañan Palace, the University of the Philippines, University Club, Metropolitan Theatre, the Philippine Normal School, the Philippine School of Arts and Trades, the Bureau of Science, the Philippine General Hospital, the Army and Navy Club, Elks Club, the Y.M.C.A., the Masonic Temple, Filipinas Building, and "El Hogar Filipino" Building. The total number of buildings in Manila is in round numbers 10,000.

On account of their architecture and interior decorations, the churches in Manila are among the chief objects of interest. The largest is the Catholic Cathedral in Intramuros. The city has also charitable institutions, prominent among which are the Hospicio de San José, an orphan asylum and home for aged women; the School for the Deaf and Blind; the San Lazaro Hospital for those suffering from contagious diseases; the sanatoria of the Anti-Tuberculosis Society known as the Quezon Institute; the Government Orphanage for the care of orphan and destitute children; the Settlement House for the temporary shelter of destitute persons; and the American Guardian Association for destitute children of American and Filipino parentage.

Manila is the educational centre of the archipelago. The city has many schools, both public and private, and their number is increasing. Four schools for vocational education are maintained here by the Insular Government. The University of the Philippines—embracing the Colleges of Liberal Arts, Law, Medicine and Surgery, Engineering, Agriculture, Veterinary Medicine, Education, Schools of Forestry Dentistry, Pharmacy, and Fine Arts, a Graduate School of Tropical Medicine and Public Health, and a Conservatoire of Music—is located in Manila. Other high institutions of learning are the National University, the Philippines Women's College, Jose Rizal College, Ateneo de Manila, the University of Manila, and the University of Santo Tomas, which is managed and maintained by the Dominican Fathers. In this there are Schools of Theology and Church Law, Jurisprudence, Notarial Law, Medicine, Pharmacy, Business and Engineering.

The city and its suburbs receive their drinking water by pipes leading from the reservoir at Novaliches, north-east of Manila. The water is laid on to almost every house, both domestic and business. For the purpose of improving the water-supply and extending its benefits to the neighbouring towns, its administration and ownership has been transferred from the city of Manila to a Government Corporation, known as the Metropolitan Water District, since July 1st, 1919. In addition, there are 18 artesian wells which furnish water free to the public. The sewerage system is known as the separate system—one for storm drains and the other for sanitary sewers. The leading hospitals are the Philippine General Hospital, San Juan de Dios Hospital, St. Paul's Hospital, San Lazaro Hospital, Mary Chiles Hospital, and St. Luke's Hospital. There are 18 playgrounds provided with apparatus and placed under the charge of a playground director and staff of assistants. For fire prevention the city has eight fire-stations.

Manila is also the principal industrial centre of the archipelago. In the city are found coconut-oil mills, cigar and cigarette factories, rope manufacturing firms, hemp braid hat factories, breweries and distilleries, furniture factories, lumber mills, marine railway and repair shops, foundries and machine shops, vulcanizing plants shoe and soap making establishments, and ice plants.

The automatic telephone system extends throughout the city and its suburbs. Electric light has been placed in public parks, streets, hotels, theatres, and other buildings. The city is provided with theatres, baseball grounds, tennis courts, and golf and race courses. The principal clubs are the Army and Navy Club, Casino Español, Elks Club, Wack-Wack Golf and Country Club, Manila Golf Club, Columbia Club, Golf Club, Manila Club, Tiro al Blanco, Philippine Columbian Association, Club Filipino, Oriental Club, University Club and the Polo Club.

Among the interesting places in the city are the Aquarium for fishes and other sea animals found in Philippine waters; the Bureau of Science, the headquarters of the scientific work of the Government and its National Museum Division which has charge of the Museum of Natural History and the Museum of Industries; the Observatory of the Philippine Weather Bureau, especially noted for its work in connection with typhoons and earthquakes; the Bilibid Prison, with a highly developed industrial department; the National Library; the Museum of Santo Tomas University; and the Luneta, where concerts are given by the famous Philippine Army Band.

BAGUIO

The city of Baguio is the summer capital of the Philippines. The name means typhoon. It is situated 150 miles north of Manila, among the Benguet mountains. Its elevation is 1,450 metres, or about 5,000 feet. At many points it is over 5,500 feet. The city has an area of 49 square kilometres and a perimetre of 30.6 kilometres. Its population in 1937 numbered 11,455 consisting of Igorots, Christian Filipinos, Americans, Japanese, Chinese and Europeans. In 1939 its population was 24,122. The mean monthly minimum temperature is 14·9 deg. C. (58·8 deg. F.), and the mean monthly maximum 23·0 deg. C. (73·4 deg. F.). The annual average of the humidity is 86·4. The forests are pure pine.

Baguio was discovered by a Spaniard, Alfonse Martin Quirante in 1623, and six years later Guillermo Galvey, a Spaniard, led an expedition to Baguio. Dean C. Worcester, visiting the Philippines in 1892, in the interest of science, met by chance a Spaniard, Señor Sanchez, and Baguio may be said to owe its origin to this chance meeting. The First Civil Government in the township of Baguio was established in 1900. A committee composed of General Luke E. Wright, Governor-General; Dean C. Worcester, Secretary of the Interior; Horace L. Higgins, President of Manila Railroad Company; Major L. M. Maus, U.S.A., Medical Corps; and Dr. Frank S. Bourns, journeyed from San Fernando to Baguio to investigate the possibilities of establishing a mountain resort and health station. On the strength of the committee's recommendations, the Philippine Commission appropriated money for Baguio's initial development. The first Sanatorium (now the Post Office) was constructed in 1902. D. H. Burnham, a landscape architect, visited Baguio in 1904 and drew the Burnham Plan for the development of Baguio. The Baguio Country Club was organized in 1906, and in 1908, the Baguio Hospital and Mansion House were constructed, and Teachers' Camp was opened. In 1909 five large Stanley automobiles made a through trip on the Benguet Road (now Kennon Road) for the first time. In the same year the township of Baguio was incorporated under the name of City of Baguio with a charter.

The township has a City Council consisting of five members, including the mayor and vice-mayor, an Igorot Advisory Council of five members, and various Government departments. Heads of the various departments, the Vice-Mayor and a third City Councilman, members of the Igorot Advisory Council, are all appointed by the President of the Philippines with the consent of the Commission on Appointments of the National Assembly. The two other members of the City Council are elected by popular vote. For obvious reasons, two or more positions are filled by only one person without extra compensation. The City Treasurer is also the City Assessor, Mining Recorder for the Sub province of Benguet, and Registrar of Deeds for both the city and the sub-province. The City Health Officer is also the Chief of the Baguio Hospital. The City Attorney is also the Provincial Fiscal of the Mountain Province. One Councilman is also the Superintendent of the Philippine Military Academy. The Vice-Mayor is usually a ranking officer of the United States Army Post at Camp John Hay.

The activities of the City Government embrace the operation of the following utilities: Hydro-electric plant, ice plant, telephone system, water supply system, sewerage system, pail and garbage system, city slaughterhouse, concrete pipe factory, rock crusher, and land transportation. The first city hydro-electric plant was completed on July 16th, 1921, the second city hydro-electric plant was completed on April 21st, 1924, the ice plant began the production of ice in 1912, the telephone system was inaugurated in 1908, the water supply system began operation in 1910, the sewer system began operation in 1913, the pail and garbage system was inaugurated in 1911, the city slaughterhouse was established in 1911, a concrete pipe factory was established in 1920, a rock crusher installed in 1916, the Baguio Central School (2 stories concrete) was completed on March 16th, 1923, the Sanitary Camp was established in 1913, the Vegetable Market Building (stone) was completed in 1918, Baguio Auditorium (formerly grandstand) was inaugurated on April 25th, 1924, and the Baguio Branch Library (branch of the National Library) was established in August, 1921.

The places of interest in and round Baguio are: Camp John Hay, Trinidad Farm School, Teachers' Camp, Dominican Hill, Mirador Observatory, Sto. Tomas Mountain, Antamok Mines, Topside, Mansion House, Country Club, Wright Park, Pines Hotel, Government Centre, Quezon Hill, Burnham Park, Easter School, City Hall, City Market, Military Hill, Bua Dormitory, City Camp, Brent School, Saint Louis College, Baguio Central Schools, Baguio Hospital, Baguio Branch Library and Busol Cave Reservation.

ILOILO

According to tradition, the first Malay settlers of Iloilo came from Borneo. Ten datus with their followers and slaves landed in Panay Island at a place then called Sinogbuhan, near the present site of Miagao, Iloilo. The Bornean immigrants found the place inhabited by Negritos living under the rule of a brave chief by the name of Marikudo. From this chief the Bornean datus bought the entire Island of Panay for one gold necklace and one Sadok of gold. They then divided it into three districts or sakops namely, Hamtik, Aklan, and Ilong-Ilong. In later times, Hamtik became Antique, Aklan became Capiz, and Ilong-Ilong Iloilo.

Hamtik was placed under the rule of a datu named Samaquel, who became the founder of Malandong, the first Malay settlement in Antique. Aklan was placed under the rule of Bankaya, who became the founder of the first Malay settlement in what is now Capiz. And Ilong-Ilong was placed under the rule of a datu named Paiburong who became the founder of the first settlement of Malays in Iloilo.

How Iloilo came to have its present name is very interesting. Before the coming of the Malays the inhabitants of the place were Negritos. These people named Iloilo Irong-Irong because the southwest coast of Panay Island is shaped into a nose and a chin and because the Iloilo River meanders in a nose-shaped line. "Irong" means literally "nose" in English, and "Irong-Irong" is equivalent to "like a nose." Later on, when the Malays settled in the place, they changed its name to Ilong-Ilong. for the simple reason that the Malays can pronounce the letter "l" better than the letter "r." And still later, when the Spaniards came to the place, they further changed the name to Ilo-Ilo to suit the convenience of the Spanish tongue. The Americans adopted the name Iloilo.

The Spaniards began to enter Iloilo as early as the time of Legaspi. Finding themselves harassed by the natives of Cebu, they sailed westward to Panay and established settlement in the town now called Oton. The Spanish power really asserted itself when Governor Ronquillo in 1580-1583, founded the villa de Arevalo. The town of Iloilo became the capital of the province in 1688. It was opened to the commerce of the world in 1855.

With the revolution of 1898 and the coming of the Americans, Spanish power immediately melted away. On Dec. 23, 1898, the Spanish Governor resident of Iloilo resigned, giving over the care of the provincial capital to the Mayor Alcalde of the city. The Spanish forces subsequently evacuated Iloilo on Dec. 25.

On Dec. 28, 1898, the U. S. forces, composed of the s.s. Baltimore and three transports with 3,800 troops under the command of Brigadier General Miller, arrived at Iloilo and demanded its surrender. The revolutionary forces, awaiting general orders from Aguinaldo, declined. Thereupon, Gen. Miller advised the foreign consulates on the city that hostilities would commence at 5.00 p.m. on Feb. 12th.

The revolutionary forces having no means to hold their positions, set fire to the city and retired to the mountainous interior of Panay. The city was thereupon occupied by the Americans. After some guerilla warfare, the revolutionary forces surrendered. On April 11, 1901, civil government was established in the Province of Iloilo.

According to the present ranking of Philippine Provinces, Iloilo is classified as a first class province. The provincial capital, Iloilo is now a chartered city of the Philippine Islands.

Location and Importance

The City of Iloilo, 340 miles from Manila, 175 miles from Cebu, and 234 miles from Zamboanga, is situated on the southeast of the Island of Panay, just at the mouth of Iloilo River. It is the capital of the Province of Iloilo, and being safely protected from the adjoining seas by the island of Guimaras, it naturally became the leading Visayan port of the Philippines.

Size

The City, consisting of Iloilo proper and its suburbs, Molo and Mandurriao, is estimated to cover 14.25 square kilometers. It is a conglomerate of cement, wooden, and nipa houses, with the first two kinds greatly predominating. Some of its buildings, specially those of its suburb Molo, are notedly old in their style of construction. The principal streets are of either asphalt or cement.

Climate and Rainfall

The climate of the city is in general mild and agreeable; at times it may be better than that of Manila. The hottest months are March and April, the coolest December and January. During the months of June, July and August, the southwest winds blow, bringing the heaviest rains of the year. February is the driest month.

Population and Religion

The census of 1918 gave the population of Iloilo within city limits as 24,898 males and 24,216 females. But due to the improved conditions of the inhabitants and the rapid immigration into the city, the population of 1930 was estimated to be around 75,000. Among the foreign population are Spaniards, Chinese, Japanese, Americans, British, Swiss, Hindus, and other nationalities. The natives are predominatingly Catholics. There are a good number of Aglipayans and Protestants.

Education

Almost all the people are literate. A good number of them have at least a high school education. Besides its public schools for boys and girls, the city has several private institutions of learning among which are the Colegio de San Agustin and the Iloilo Institute, both for boys with the latter also receiving girls, and the Colegio de la Asuncion, the Colegio del Sagrado Corazon and the Colegio de Santa Ana, all for girls. The Protestants have recently established the Central Philippine College which is located in the adjacent town of Jaro. There are also commercial schools in the city as well as a number of kindergarten schools.

Newspapers

A testimony to the culture of the people is the number of newspapers and magazines in circulation. Besides the foreign and Manila newspapers and magazines which can be had in the city, Iloilo has four Spanish dailies, one English Daily, two Visayan Weeklies, one Visayan monthly, and one Visayan paper issued every three days. Papers may be easily had from the newsboys. Magazines may be bought at several stores.

Recreation

There are four first class theatres in the city showing American or Spanish sound pictures in addition to several cheaper grade and one theatre showing Chinese film. Out-of-door recreation can be had at the beach alongside the city, particularly at the Cota Drive which forms part of the beach and serves Iloilo in the same way the Dewey Boulevard serves Manila.

CEBU

This is the capital of the island of Cebu, and ranks as the second port of the Philippines. Its situation is latitude 0° 8′ North, longitude 124° 10′ East. Population about 120,000. For many generations it has been an important centre of Roman Catholic Missionary enterprise, and in this connection it may be mentioned that the present Seminary and College of San Carlos was founded by the Jesuits in 1595 as the College of San Ildefonso. The Redemptorist Fathers have a mission at Cebu. Cebu is a well-built town and possesses fine roads. The trade of Cebu consists principally of hemp, sugar, copra, maguey, lumber, tobacco and coconut oil. The neighbouring islands of Leyte, Mindanao, and Camiguin possess extensive hemp plantations, a large proportion of the produce of which finds its way to Cebu for shipment. There are some very valuable and extensive coal deposits in the island of Cebu, but only a few mines are being worked. The Naga Cement Works, situated about 20 miles from Cebu, were completed in 1922 and have a capacity of 2,000 barrels a day, which is more not enough to supply the Philippines, and plans are on foot so to increase the capacity to 4,000 barrels per day.

Cebu continues to grow in importance as a trade centre. Vessels drawing up to 28 feet can load alongside the wharves with perfect safety. There are suitable berths for eight ocean-going vessels at one time. Owing to the increase of steamers making Cebu a regular port of call, additional wharfage area has been constructed. Pier No. 1 has now been completed and is equipped with a fine cargo shed, two vessels drawing up to 26 feet can be berthed with safety. Pier No. 2 has also been completed and is constructed on the same lines as Pier No. 1. Pier No. 3 completed but without a shed and will cater mostly for local vessels. Besides the foregoing there are private wharves belonging to the Philippine Refining Corporation, Standard Oil Co., Asiatic Petroleum Co., and Texas Oil Co. (Philippines), Inc. The annual total production of hemp in the Cebu district is between 35,000 and 45,000 tons. The production of copra is important. Large quantities of copra are exported, 275,000 to 300,000 tons annually; previously, the local oil-mills bought up practically all available supplies, but now only the Philippine Refining Company is running. The town possesses a fine reinforced concrete Customs House, indeed, the major portion of the business district is now built of concrete. Work on the new reclamation scheme is completed and has added a large area to the water-front for warehouses, many of which have been completed and others are under construction. A fine new Capitol Building at a cost of P500,000 is now in use and is the finest building anywhere in the Islands outside of Manila.

ZAMBOANGA

Zamboanga is located on the south-western extremity of Mindanao Island in latitude 6 deg. 55 min. north and longitude 122 deg. 5 min. east, being 512 nautical miles south of Manila. It has a population of about 41,591. Since the opening of the Port of Davao its volume of business has dwindled considerably. Once a transhipping point for hemp there is now practically no hemp exported from Zamboanga. Copra, lumber, desiccated coconut and cutch are the chief exports. The harbour is partially protected by two small islands and is never visited by severe storms, as it is south of the typhoon belt. It has a good anchorage for steamers of any size, and the wharf will accommodate steamers drawing 25 feet. The climate is characterized by a remarkable evenness of temperature and a comparatively small rainfall which increases rapidly as one goes a few miles from Zamboanga in any direction.

Communication with other ports is assured by inter-island steamers. There are five sailings a week to Cebu and Manila, among them being the Manila R. R. Steamship Line's 22-knot steamer "Mayon" with most luxurious appointments and excellent service. Overseas Steamship Line making regular calls at Zamboanga is the Klaveness Line monthly service. Telegraphic communication with various parts of the Archipelago is secured by a wireless station connecting with cables and land lines.

Zamboanga was founded by the Spaniards in April, 1635, for the purpose of intercepting Moro corsair fleets which were accustomed to pass the Strait of Basilan from southern Mindanao to the Visayan Islands. The town was repeatedly attacked by the Moros. In 1646, it exchanged shots with a Dutch fleet and, in 1798, maintained an all-day bombardment with an English squadron. In 1872, for putting down a mutiny of prisoners, Zamboanga was granted by the Madrid Government the title "Loyal and Valiant Town." On May 10th, 1899, the revolutionists attacked the Spanish garrison in Zamboanga, which withdrew on May 24th. The town was burned during the hostilities. During the summer of 1899, the Republic of Zamboanga was in full control, but the town was finally surrendered to the American blockading squadron without bloodshed on November 16th of the same year.

Zamboanga is the capital of the province of the same name. The town, though small, is one of the most beautiful, not only of the Philippines but of the Far East. It is characterised by shady streets and possesses very fine parks and exquisite gardens. There is a drastic building ordinance in force which provides that all buildings erected in the central portion must be of reinforced concrete or other equally fire-proof material with an 8-inch firewall every 100 feet. Good roads extend along the coast in either direction from the town.

BORNEO

This island is one of the largest in the world. It extends from about 7 deg. N. to 4 deg. S. latitude, and from 109 deg. to 118° E. longitude. Its length is about 850 miles, its greatest breadth 600 miles, and its average breadth is estimated at 350 miles. Its vast interior consists of heavy forests, which teem with animal life, but are sparsely populated by man. The soil is fertile, and in some parts near the coast the land is marshy. It was discovered by the Portuguese in 1526, and they, as well as the Spaniards, Dutch, and English, formed settlements on different parts of the coast but none of these was long maintained. The Dutch claim sovereignty over the greater part of the south and west of the island, along the coast of which they maintain establishments; the territories of the British North Borneo Company, the Rajah of Sarawad and the Sultanate of Brunei (now administered by the British Government) extenk over and along the north and north-eastern coast. The Native States are insignificant and in a backward condition. The total population of Borneo is roughly estimated at 3,000,000. The productions are many and varied, and the mineral resources believed to be great. The Chinese, who have been settled in most Bornean towns for generations, conduct most of the trading operations. The country generally is in an undeveloped condition. The natives comprise Malays, Dayaks and other races of a kindred type. A British Protectorate exists over Sarawak and the territory of the British North Borneo Company.

SARAWAK

The area of Sarawak is about 50,000 square miles. The coast line is about 500 miles and many rivers are navigable. The government of part of the present territory was obtained in 1842 by Sir James Brooke from the Sulten of Brunei. Various accessions were made between 1861 and 1905. Under an agreement of 1888 Sarawak is recognised as an independent State under the protection of Great Britain. The present Rajah, H. H. Sir Charles Vyner Brooke, G.C.M.G. (born in September 26, 1874) succeeded his father, H. H. Sir Charles Johnson Brooke, G.C.M.G. in 1917. Heir presumptive, Bertram Brooke (H. H. the Tuan Muda) (born in August 8, 1876). H. H. the Rajah Muda, Anthony Walter Dayrell Brooke (born in December 10, 1912).

The population is estimated at about 442,900 Malays, Dayaks, Milanoes, Kayans, Kenyahs, Muruts and other minor tribes, with Chinese and other settlers. The chief town are the capital, Kuching, about 23 miles inland, on the Sarawak River, Sibu, 60 miles up the Rejang River, which is navigable by large steamers and Miri, the headquarters of the Sarawak Oilfields, Ltd. At Kuching are Church of England and Catholic mission with schools.

The revenue is derived chiefly from Customs, the Government opium monopoly, gambling, arrack and pawn farms, royalty on oil, land revenue, timber royalty, exemption tax payable by Malays, and from Dayak and Kayan revenue. The revenue in 1938 was $4,261,899.00; expenditure, $4,272,140. Public debt, nil. Coal exists in large quantities. A considerable oil field is being developed at Miri and Bakong in the Baram district.

Foreign trade in 1938 was: imports, $22,731,939; exports, $26,135,097. The chief imports in 1938 included (in thousand dollars) crude oil, 5,653; rice, 2,269; iron, steel and manufacturers, 2,542; tobacco, 1,355; cloth and cotton, 650; machinery, 365; sugar, 480; kerosene, 457; exports: plantation rubber, 7,968; liquid fuel, 6,448; gold, 1,113; benzine, 3,105; sago flour, 570; kerosene, 1,434; solar oil, nil; white pepper, 609. The trade is mostly with Singapore.

Shipping entered in the foreign trade in 1938 was 892,543 tons. There is a constabulary consisting of about 1,000 men, principally Dayaks and Malays, under British army officers. Round Kuching are about 45 miles of roads, besides bridle paths. There are 34 post offices.

The Government offices have a telephone system extending over Kuching and upper Sarawak and there is communication by wireless with Singapore, etc. There are also wireless stations at Kuching, Miri, Sibu, Lundu, Mukah, Simanggang, Bintulu, Sarikei, Meluan, Kapit, Limbang, Baram, Saratok, Matu, Balingian, Tatau, Lawas and Kanowit. The distance from London is about 8,700 miles. The transit is about 25 to 30 days. Telegrams are sent by wireless from Singapore.

The rainfall during 1938 in Kuching was 140.97 inches at Bau, in the south-west, 81.20 inches at Sibu, roughly in the middle of the country, 116.11 inches and at Trusan, in the extreme north-east, 174.97 inches. The greatest fall in any one month was regtistered in January 1938 at Sungei Bowang, where 46.69 inches fell.

There is a Special Commissioner for Sarawak as well as a Government Agent in England whose offices are at Millbank House, Westminster, London, S. W. 1. There is also a Sarawak Pilgrim Officer at Jeddah.

BRITISH NORTH BORNEO

This territory, formerly known as Sabah, situated at the northern end of the island of Borneo, has a coast line of about 800 miles. The population is made up of Malays, Bajaus, Dusuns, Sulus and Muruts, and at the census in 1931 numbered 270,223, which includes about 47,799 Chinese. The chief geographical feature in the territory is the mountain of Kinabalu, about 13,455 feet high. The principal river on the West coast is the Padas. On the East Coast there are the Kinabatangan, Labuk, Sugut, Segama, and many other valuable rivers. The best harbours are those of Jesselton on the West coast, Kudat on the North, Sandakan and Cowie Harbours on the East Coast, the two last-named being very spacious and possessing great potentialities.

The climate is particularly pleasant for the tropics; the days are rarely very hot, while a blanket is often required at night; and little inconvenience is experienced from insect pests, such as mosquitoes and the like. Hurricanes, earthquakes, and other natural disturbances are almost unknown. The seas are teeming with fish, and there is a large export trade in canned dried and salted fish. Trade with Singapore, Hongkong and the Philippines is well established. A weekly steamship service is maintained between North Borneo ports and Singapore by the Straits Steamship Company, and steamers run regularly to Hongkong and the Philippines. A weekly service to the East Coast ports is maintained by the Sabah Steamship Company. There is a fortnightly service to Tawau from Netherlands Indies ports by the K.P.M. Line. The Nanyo Kaiun Kabusiki Kaisya run a monthly service between Java, Tawau, Sandakan and Japan. There are in all four lines of steamships maintaining communication with North Borneo. Most of the trade supplies are obtained from and through Singapore; and with Hongkong there is a brisk and increasing trade in timber. Amongst the zoological productions of North Borneo are to be noted elephants, rhinoceros, deer of three kinds, wild cattle, proboscis monkey, orang-utan, pig, bears, pythons and crocodiles. Of game birds there are a few wild duck, many varieties of wild pigeon, doves, snipe and quail.

Sandakan, the capital, has a magnificent harbour and is the chief place of trade. Jesselton, on the West coast, is developing, and several of the Government Departments are located there. It is also one of the termini of the State Railway. The imports include cloth, rice, hardware, manufactured goods of all kinds, Chinese tobacco, Chinese coarse crockery, matches, machinery, biscuits, oil, sugar, etc. The chief exports are rubber, copra, timber, dried and salt fish, native tobacco, rattans, edible birds'-nests, seed pearls, bêche de mer, sharks' fins, Borneo crystalline camphor tortoise-shell, beeswax, and other natural products, which are brought in from the interior, the neighbouring Sulu Archipelago, etc.

Revenue in North Borneo amounted to £379,101 in 1938, as compared with £407,982 in 1937. Expenditure in North Borneo was £247,288 in 1938 (including £30,128 for depreciation, railway renewals, contingencies, etc.), as compared with £243,009 in 1937.

Timber and Rubber are now the largest industries in the country, having displaced tobacco from the premier place; and coconut cultivation is becoming one of the features of the country, in which there are large areas still to be exploited. Cutch, which is extracted from mangrove bark, is being exported in considerable quantities. There are now many companies operating in North Borneo, the majority being engaged in rubber growing. 126,640 acres are under rubber cultivation. The population of the town of Sandakan, the capital of the territory, according to the 1931 census, was 13,286 (as compared with 11,936 in 1921), composed of Europeans 111, Chinese 11,030, Javanese 562, Indians 193, Japanese 39, Malays 176, Philippine Islanders 248, natives of Borneo 1,356 and others 111. The North Borneo State Railway has a total mileage of 127 miles. The main line runs for 56 miles through flat country to Beaufort. From Beaufort to Tenom it runs through 30 miles of the Padas Gorge, noted for its beautiful scenery; and thence on through undulating country to Melalap, the present terminus. A branch line runs from Beaufort to the small port of Weston, a distance of about 20 miles. The railway is playing an important part in the development of the West Coast. Already there are 14 large rubber estates and numerous small holdings served by it, whilst the acreage under padi, sago and coconuts is steadily increasing. Sandakan is distant about 1,000 miles from Singapore, 1,200 miles from Hongkong, and 660 miles from Manila. It became connected telegraphically with Labuan on the 7th, May, 1897, and was thus placed in communication with Europe, etc. There are now nine wireless installations in the country—at Jesselton, Sandakan, Kudat, Tawau and Lahad Datu. The State Bank of North Borneo was established in 1921 with its head office at Sandakan and an agency at Jesselton. A lighthouse has been established at Batu Tinagat, near Tawau, and at Tanjong Trang, near Tambisan Island, on the East coast. Unattended lights have been placed on Taganac Island, near Sandakan, Kalampunian Island, North Point, Kudat, and Armstrong Reef, near Lahad Datu.

The territory of North Borneo was acquired from the Sultans of Brunei and Sulu by cession for small annual payments in 1877, and the British North Borneo Company was incorporated by Royal Charter on the 1st November, 1881. The area of the territory is about 29,347 square miles, and the population, as ascertained by the census of 1931, was 270,223, as compared with 257,804 in 1921. This total included 340 Europeans, 205,218 natives of Borneo, 47,799 Chinese, and 11,494 natives of the Malay Archipelago. The Company's authorised capital is £,2000,000. A dividend of 3½ per cent was declared for 1916, 4 per cent for 1917, 4½ per cent for 1918, 5 per cent for 1919, 3 per cent for 1920, 3 per cent for 1921, 3½ per cent for 1922, 2¾ per cent for 1923, 1¼ per cent for 1928, 2 per cent for 1936 and 4 per cent for 1937 and 1938. In May, 1888, a British Protectorate was established.

The following officers have administered the Government of the Territory since its acquisition by the Company:

LABUAN

This, formerly the smallest British Colony in Asia, was ceded to Great Britain by the Sultan of Brunei in 1846, and taken possession of in 1848. It is situated on the north-west coast of Borneo in latitude 5 deg. 16 min. N., and longitude 115 deg. 15 min. E. It has an area of 35 square miles, and is about six miles from the Borneo coast and 725 miles, or three days' steaming, from Singapore. Although Labuan possesses a fine port, has extensive coal deposits, and by situation seemed likely to become a depôt for the trade of the north coast of Borneo, it has only partially fulfilled the expectations formed of it. The produce of Brunei Bay finds a market in Labuan; about 1860 acres of rubber are planted, part in bearing, and principally owned by Chinese. Coconuts are being planted on the same land. There is regular steamship communication with Singapore and Sandakan, as well as with the local ports. The Government was administered by the British North Borneo Company from 1890 until January 1st, 1906, when the Colonial Office again resumed direct control, and Labuan was incorporated with the Straits Settlements in January, 1907, becoming a separate settlement in 1912.

The coal mines worked by the Labuan Coalfields Co., Ltd., exported in 1910, 9,200 tons. This company ceased operations in March, 1911, and another company, styled the Labuan Exploration Co. was formed in London with the object of working these mines and prospecting for other minerals but its efforts were unsuccessful and their export of coal ceased many years ago.

In recent years there has been an increase of vegetable and fruit cultivation among the smallholders, a tendency which will probably develop further with the depression in the rubber industry.

The estimated mid-year population in 1938 (1931 Census) was 8567.

BRUNEI

Geography

Brunei is a State on the north-west coast of Borneo, lying between Latitude 4° 2' and 5° 3' North and Longitude 114° 4' and 115° 22' East. It forms two enclaves into the territory of Sarawak, by which it is bounded on all sides, or perhaps it would be more correct to say, historically speaking, that an intrusion of Sarawak formed by the basin of the Limbang River splits the State into two separate parts. It comprises an area of some 2,226 square miles, and has a coast line of about a hundred miles extending from Brunei Bay in the East to the boundary with Sarawak in the West.

The capital of the same name, or, to give it its honorific Arabic title, Daru'l Salam (Abode of Peace), is situated on the Brunei River about nine miles from its mouth and is distant by sea 758 nautical miles from Singapore. At the time of the last census in 1931 it had a population of 10,453. Prior to 1910 the town consisted entirely of Malay houses built on nibong piles on mud flats in the river, but it has now spread over a portion of the mainland, partly reclaimed, on which the Government Offices and other public buildings and streets of shophouses have been built.

Set in a wide sweep of the river, somewhat reminiscent of one of the smaller Italian lakes, this river town is in its way unique. At high tide under favourable conditions of light it takes on quite a remarkable beauty; viewed at close quarters it is even more remarkably ramshackle. The houses are grouped together in small villages, many being connected by precarious bridges, and there the inhabitants carry on their multifarious activities in much the same way as if they were on land. Here, it is said, there are to be found still living old women who have never set foot on dry land.

The only other town of any size is Kuala Belait at the south-western end of the State's seaboard with a population of about 5,000. It is the centre of a rapidly expanding oil producing district and the local head-quarters of the British Malayan Petroleum Company. Here, with municipal services, piped water supply, electric light, domestic gas, cold storage, cinema and other amenities, it is difficult to realise that within living memory it has been the scene of human sacrifices, and that only two hours up river there are pagan tribes treasuring the grisly relics of head-hunting expeditions of not so long ago.

History

Brunei has no pre history, and the meagre written records do not begin until Mohammedanism established the Arabic script in the fifteenth century. For records of the pre-Mohammedan era we have to turn to Hindu and Chinese chroniclers. Chinese annals of the sixth and seventh centuries contain references to a kingdom known as Poli or Puni which sent tribute to the Emperors of China in A. D. 518, 523 and 616. Similar references to a State of that name 45 days' sail from Java occur in the annals of the Sung dynasty which ruled over South China from about 960 to 1280 A. D., and there are strong grounds for identifying it with Brunei, though the authorities are not unanimous on this point. With the decline of the Sung dynasty Brunei transferred its allegiance to Hindu Majapahit in Java, then back again to China, and finally, at the end of the fourteenth century, paid tribute to Mohammedan Malacca. With the coming of the Ming emperors the ties with vassal states were strengthened, and tribute were sent to China several times between 1405 and 1425. Thereafter there is no record.

Brunei must soon have thrown off all allegiance, for by the early years of the sixteenth century it had risen to great power, and one of its rulers, Sultan Bulkiah, or Nakhoda Ragam (the Singing Captain), a renowned sea rover, made conquests in Borneo and Sulu, and even seized Manila. This was the golden age of Brunei. Her sovereignty extended over the whole of the island of Borneo, the Sultanates of Sambas, Pontianak, Banjermasin, Pasir Kotei and Balungan being her vassals, as well as over the islands of Sulu, Palawan and Balabac.

The first European account of Brunei is that of Pigafetta, Magellan's historian who sailed with him on his famous voyage round the world. Pigafetta visited Brunei in 1521 and was greatly impressed by the splendour of the Court and the size of the town, the population of which he estimated at 25,000 families. Further visits were paid by the Portuguese in 1526 and 1530, and a trading factory and Catholic mission were established at the beginning of the next century. Spain too, having taken possession of the Philippines, evinced an active interest in Brunei affairs and twice attacked the capital. Later the English and the Dutch in turn made sporadic appearances Towards the end of the sixteenth century the power of Brunei began to decline, and the outlying territories gradually fell away. The Dutch, having established trading stations on the South-west, South and East of Borneo, rapidly extended their sphere of influence over the semi-independent but nominally vassal Sultanates. This disintegration continued until by the beginning of the nineteenth century the kingdom of Brunei had so dwindled in extent as to include only what is now Sarawak and part of British North Borneo.

At this period the capital itself seems to have degenerated to the condition of a slave market for the sale of captives of the Illanun and Sulu pirates. Anarchy was rife in the outlying districts, and in 1841, in return for his services in assisting the Bendahara, Rajah Muda Hashim, to quell an insurrection at Kuching, Sarawak proper was ceded to Mr. James (later Sir James) Brooke, who was proclaimed Rajah of Sarawak. In 1846 the island of Labuan was ceded to Great Britain as a base for anti-piracy measures, and in 1877 the whole of the northern portion of Borneo was ceded to form the nucleus of what was to become British North Borneo. At various later dates further cessions were made to the Rajah of Sarawak and to the British North Borneo Company till the territories of the State were eventually reduced to their present circumscribed limits.

In 1847 the Sultan entered into a Treaty with Great Britain for the furtherance of commercial relations and the mutual suppression of piracy, an additional clause providing for extra-territorial jurisdiction over British subjects in Brunei, which provision was modified by an Agreement of 1856. By a further Treaty made in 1888 Brunei, was placed under the protection of Great Britain, and the Sultan agreed that the foreign relations of the State should be conducted by Her Majesty's Government. Provision was also made for the setting up of Consular Courts with jurisdiction over British subjects and foreign subjects enjoying British protection. In 1906 a supplementary Agreement was entered into whereby the Sultan undertook to accept a British officer to be styled Resident, who should be the agent and representative of the British Government under the High Commissioner for the Malay States.

Climate

The climate is of the tropical marine type and is characterised by uniform temperature, high humidity and copious rainfall. The heat is usually tempered with a slight breeze and the temperature rarely exceeds 90° F, the usual daily range being between 76° F. and 86° F.

The annual rainfall is high and varies from 100 inches at the coast to over 200 inches in certain parts of the interior. The highest rainfall during the year was at Batu Apoi where 257·92 inches were recorded. There are no well defined seasons, but the rainfall tends to be heaviest from October to the middle of January during the period of the North-East monsoon, known locally as the "landas".

Local standard time is eight hours fast of Greenwish (time meridiam 120° E). As the mean Longitude of the State is roughly 115° E, there is thus a sort of natural daylight saving of about twenty minutes.

Government

Brunei is a Sultanate. The present Ruler, the twenty-seventh Sultan of the line, is His Highness Ahmed Tajudin Akhazul Khairi Wadin ibni Almerhum Sultan Mohamed Jemal-ul-Alam, who succeeded his father in 1924 at the age of eleven. During his minority the Pengiran Bendahara and the Pengiran Pemancha, the two chief Ministers of State, acted as joint Regents. In 1931 His Highness the Sultan assumed full sovereignty and the Regency terminated

The supreme authority in the State is vested in the Sultan in Council. The Council at present consisted of nine members, including British Resident, with His Highness the Sultan as President. The assent of the Council is required for the enactment of legislation, and all important questions of Policy affecting the administration of the State are referred to it.

The general functions of administration are discharged by the British Resident, whose advice must, by the Treaty of 1906, be asked and acted upon in all questions other than those affecting the Mohammedan religion. The Resident, who is an officer of the Malayan Civil Service, has his headquarters in Brunei Town, and communicates with the High Commissioner through the intermediary of the Secretary to the High Commissioner in Singapore. He is assisted in the administration by the Assistant Resident, also an officer of the Malayan Civil Service, who is stationed at Kuala Belait.

The State is divided into four administrative districts, namely, Brunei and Muara, Temburong, Tutong and Belait, under the charge of Malay District Officers responsible to the Resident. In addition there are State heads in charge of the Public Works, Medical, Agricultural, Forest, Police, Customs, Posts and Telegraphs and Education Departments in the State.

For the purposes local government there are at Brunei, Tutong and Belait Sanitary Boards, composed of offical and unofficial members appointed by the Resident. This Boards are the authorities responsible for sanitation, conservancy, street lighting, rating and municipal matters generally within the areas for which they are appointed.

Population

Race.—Quite apart from the diversity of the alien non-Bornean peoples who have made their homes in the State, the indigenous Malaysian population itself presents a peculiar heterogeneity of race. Bruneis (as the Malays proper of the State are called), Kedayans, Tutongs, Dusuns, Belaits, Muruts and Dayaks are all represented. Parenthetically it may be remarked that the practice of denominating communities by the name of the river which they inhabit has tended to obscure ethnological affinities, as also has the use of similar terms with connotations varying in different localities.

The Bruneis and the Kedayans, to whom tradition ascribes a Javanese origin, are found principally in the Brunei, Muara and Temburong districts, and to lesser degree in the Tutong district. The Tutongs live along the comparatively populous lower reaches of the Tutong River, from which they take their name. They are probably of the same stock as the Dusuns, who inhabit the hinterland between the upper waters of the Tutong and the Belait Rivers. The Belaits, who are closely related to the Lemetings of the Baram, are confined to the lower reaches of the river which gives them their name. The Muruts are said to have been much more numerous at one time than they are to day. Disease and the depredations of their neighbours in the past, however, have greatly reduced their numbers and there now remain only sparse communities in the Temburong district. The Dayaks, who are more or less recent immigrants, are to be found in scattered settlements throughout the State close to the river banks in the more remote areas. There are also a few foreign Malaysians, such as Javanese and Banjarese.

The Bruneis are predominantly fishermen, and the Kedayans and Tutongs agriculturists, as also are the Belaits, though in a lesser degree. Until quite recently the Dusuns, Dayaks and Muruts practised shifting cultivation only, but they are now being induced by means of judicious propaganda to adopt settled methods of cultivation.

Of the alien races the Chinese are by far the most numerous. They are immigrants from the South China Provinces and are chiefly occupied as traders, shopkeepers, small farmers and labourers. Next in order of numbers are the Indians of whom, however, there only a few hundred. They are practically all of South Indian stock, mostly Tamils and Malayalis, and chiefly employed as labourers on the oilfield.

Religion.—The religion of the Bruneis and Kedayans is Mohammedanism of the Shafei sect. The Tutongs and Belaits also generally profess Mohammedanism, but it is often merely a thin veneer which overlays their essential paganism. The same family may comprise both believers and unbelievers. Pagan customs still cling; there remains, for instance, at Kuala Balai a long-house, the natural habitat of the Belaits, in the rafters of which are kept about a hundred preserved heads which are brought forth and laved ceremoniously on high days and holidays. Of the other indigenous races, the Dusuns, Dayaks and Muruts are all pagan animists.

Language.—The languages spoken in the Sate are on less diverse than the races which compose its population. The language of the Bruneis and Kedayans is Malay, but of separate and distinct forms, both differing considerably from the Malay spoken in the Peninsula. The other indigenous races, the Tutongs, Belaits, Dusuns, Muruts and Dayaks, all have separate languages of their own. For them, as for the alien races, Malay serves as the lingua franca.

Of the foreign languages spoken in the State Chinese is the most common, the relative extent to which the principal dialects are spoken being, at the time of the 1931 census, Kheh 31 per cent, Hokkien 26 per cent and Cantonese 15 per cent. The Indian population speaks principally Tamil or Malayalam.

Vital Statistics

The total population of the State at the census of 1931 was 30,135, distributed by race as follows:

Europeans		60
Eurasians		10
Malaysians:
Malays	14,835
Kedayans	5,871
Tutongs	2,733
Dusuns	2,118
Dayaks	453
Belaits	446
Muruts	290
Other Malaysians	226
		26,972
Chinese		2,683
Indians		377
Others		33

The estimated population at the end of 1938 calculated by the balancing equation method was 37,868.

Commerce

With the exception of exports of crude oil and natural gas which are effected by pipe-line straight to the refinery in Sarawak, practically the whole of the external trade of the State passes through Singapore with transhipment at Labuan, and foreign trade in its commonly accepted sense may be said to be non-existent.

The State is largely dependent upon imports for its requirements of foodstuffs. About two-thirds of the consumption of rice, which forms the staple food of the bulk of the population, has to be imported, and the proportion of imports of most other foodstuffs, apart from fish and meat, is also high. It is perhaps not at once apparent why, in a State which is a very large producer of oil, petroleum should rank amongst the most important imports. The reason is, of course, that no refining is done within the State, the whole of the production being exported to Sarawak for that purpose.

It may be remarked that crude oil by itself accounted for approximately 83·5 per cent of the total value of the export trade, followed, a long way behind, by plantation rubber with 9·5 per cent.

The export of rubber is regulated. Basic quotas have been fixed by international agreement for each of the participating Governments and exports are restricted to a certain percentage of these quotas each quarter. The mean percentage of release over the year was 55 per cent. The Singapore price of standard sheet remained fairly steady between 22 and 23 cents per pound during the opening months of the year, but declined sharply at the end of March and touched the bottom price of 17¼ cents per pound at the beginning of April. Thereafter it rallied and rose with occasional lapses to the peak price of 29 cents per pound in October, after which it eased and closed in December round about 27⅝ cents per pound. The average price over the year was about 23⅞ cents per pound as compared with 32 cents per pound in 1937.

The importation of cotton and rayon piece-goods of foreign manufacture or origin is controlled. Regulation is effected by prohibiting by rule under the Customs Duties Enactment the importation, otherwise than from the Colony or a Malay State or Sarawak, of certain classes of foreign textiles in respect of which a quota has been fixed under the Straits Settlements Importation of Textiles (Quotas) Ordinance, except under licence. As the other Malay States and Sarawak have imposed a similar prohibition, all imports of such textiles into the State are subjected to the Straits Settlements quota restrictions. No licences for direct import from other countries were issued.

Trade.—The aggregate value of the trade of the State for the year (exclusive of notes, coin, bullion and specie) was $9,402,281 as compared with $8,111,394 in 1937 and $6,075,264 in 1936.

Imports.—The total declared value of imports during the year amounted to $2,-821,799. The figures for the preceding four years were :

1934	$1,751,868
1935	$1,994,059
1936	$1,869,994
1937	$2,516,154

Exports.—The total declared value of exports during the year was $6,580,482. The figures for the preceding four years were :

1934	$3,439,501
1935	$3,778,655
1936	$4,205,270
1937	$5,595,240
